Sea, several hours sailing time west of the mainland and only a few miles from Ithaca, the home of Odysseus. Like most Greek islands it is losing population steadily and today has only about 30,000 people, less than half its prewar total. Visitors Aid the Economy

By one estimate, 15,000 came back here this summer. When one adds the expatri-ates from other regions who spent part of their vacation here, this annual migration forms a major part of the island's economy.

The main reason for this mass movement is summed up by the Greek word "nostos" the root of "nostalgia." Greeks are a deeply sentimental people, and as Mrs. Makris noted, their nostalgia stems partly from pride in Greece's ancient glory. It is reinforced by pride in Greece's modern struggle for independence and survival.

"I went through the war here, and our spirit was never broken," noted Dr. Artemis Damaskinidou Nash, a New York pathologist. "That gives you a certain patriotic pride. It's easier to feel that still maintain strong personal ties here. Aphrodite Tsaklan-ganos left her home in Patras eight years ago to study psy-chology in Pennsylvania, and was bringing her 16-month-old daughter back to share the "warmth and love" of her extended family and old friends.

"Feelings are communicated here that you just do not get in America." added Mrs. Tsaklanganos, who is studying for her doctorate at Columbia. "You always have to make special arrangements to see friends there. ments to see friends there.
Its not the informal, outdoor, cafe living you have here." Some come to swim and to fish, others to dance and to eat. Mrs. Makris comes to pray at the Monastery of St. Gerassimos, the patron saint Cephalonia. "If we forget about our home we feel ashamed," noted Mrs. Tsaklanganos,

"I don't want to change society, I just want to keep my family together," he added earnestly. "These three months we're together here are important. The sum-mer months are the bad months. The kids don't have things to do and they get into trouble. Here I can control my family. At least I know where they are. You borrow time, you borrow time."

It is not always easy to

"I'm spoiled by America and the American system." admitted Dr. Nash, who went to Smith on a scholarship after World War II and stayed, "The lack of efficiency and the lackadaisical atti-tudes here irritate me. I like a clean bath and plumbing that doesn't smell. When you ring for something in the hotel, you don't get it. And the building materials they use are so cheap. Too Much Hospitality

The joys of extended family can turn sour after awhile. There is no Greek word for privacy, and as one woman put it, 'They can choke you with their hospitality."

Mary Mousmoutis, a teacher from Staten Island, finds life in her husband's village rather boring. "A woman can't drive a car or open her mouth to talk—it's very machismo," she noted. "There's no TV and I've read all the books I brought with me."

These tensions are aggra-vated by politics. Most Greeks resent American polifeel that Washington favors the Turks. Many Greek-Americans share these resentments, but the expatriates are less emotional and more willing to the less than the second control of the second control more willing to see both

GERMAN WINE SALE

MORE THAN EVER GERMAN WINES REPRESENT THE BEST VALUES IN THE ENTIRE WINE WORLD. YET, DESPITE THE FACT THAT WE CAN OFFER A 1970 GRAACHER HIMMELREICH RIESLING (FRIEDRICH WILHELM GYMNASIUM) AT $2.69 THE BOTTLE, WHICH COULD BE THE RIESLING (FRIEDRICH WILHELM GYMNASIUM) AT $2.09 THE BOTTLE, WHICH COULD BE THE EQUIVALENT OF OFFERING A BATARD MONTRACHET FROM RAMONET AT THE SAME PRICE, THERE IS AND CONTINUES TO BE DEFINITE RESISTANCE TO GERMAN WINES. GERMAN WINE LABELS ARE NOT EASY TO UNDERSTAND AND THEY ARE ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO PRONOUNCE. VERY FEW STORES AND ALMOST NO RESTAURANTS HAVE ANY REPRESENTATION OF GERMAN WINES AND WHAT THEY DO HAVE IN NO WAY REFLECTS THE REAL QUALITY OF GERMAN WINES. (i.e.—WHAT YOU SEE MOSTLY IS THE BLENDED GERMAN WINES, LIEBFRAUMILCH, MOSELBLUMCHEN, MAY WINE, ETC.) AND OF COURSE THE COMMENT WE HEAR MOST ABOUT GERMAN WINES IS "OH, THEY'RE TOO SWEET." WELL, THEY'RE NOT SWEET. THEY MIGHT NOT BE AS DRY AS GALLO CHABLIS, BUT SO WHAT? THERE SEEMS TO BE A RELEX BUILT INTO MANY WINE BUYERS RELATING DRYNESS TO GOODNESS, AND BELIEVE ME. THEY MIGH! NOT BE AS DAY AS GALLO CHABLIS, BUT SO WHA!! THERE SLOWS TO BE A BEFULLY INTO MANY WINE BUYERS RELATING DRYNESS TO GOODNESS, AND BELIEVE ME. IT AIN'T SO. Mosel on Sale

Thin, tart. Mosel wines at their best are perhaps the most delicate, the most fragrant and most distinguished of all white vines. They rarely exceed 11% of alcoho by volume; pale, flowery, spicy, with great breed, they are like no other wines on earth. Here the spectacular hillsides of slate, which sometimes rise 700 feet above the river, provide the perfect condi-tions for the Riesling vine.

Legally these are Mosels and carry the designation Mosel-Saar-Ruwer on their label; they, nevertheless, have a special character of their own: austerity coupled with delicacy and extreme finesse, and a clean, very attractive hardness tempered by a wealth of Iruit and flavor. The Saar is one of the oldest wine growing areas of the world and the superlative excellence of its wines richly rewards the obstinate optimism of the wine growers who refuse to be beaten by the weather. 1973 SERRIGER HEILIGENBORN RIESLING

RHEINGAU ON SALE

The Rhine, among other things, is one of the great commercial arteries of Western Europe, and the constant river traffic gives Europe, and the constant over traffic gives the whole scene a special liveliness and charm. Behind all this busite and activity, and whofly unaffected by if, but constituting the real life of the Rheinau, is the old and solid and sound tradition of good wine. The great white wines of the Rheinau possess an intensity of bouquet which can be almost overpowering, a fullness of body which is entirely free from coarsenecs and, above all, an aristocratic distinc-tion or breeding which is almost impossible to describe.

Dance: Paul Taylor's 'Polaris' Is Given Premiere in Newport

Special to The New York Times NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 27-Paul Taylor is a remarkable choreographer - consistent and yet somehow always surprising. Since he retired as a dancer-apparently, for no formal announcement has ever been made-his creativity as a choreographer, particularly perhaps when he was using dramatic subjects, but he is now quite clearly one of the few master choreographers in the world.

Last night he effortlessly demonstrated this during the 1976 American Dance Festival at the Rogers High School Auditorium, with the world premiere of "Polaris."

The score had been specially commissioned from Don York, a young composer whose work ranges from symphony to pop, from studying with Darius Mil-haud to arranging for Bette Midler. The music proved painless and effective; you might say it was more suit-able than striking, yet it left what could be termed a pleasant taste in the ear.

though it is some years since he has actually worked with the Taylor company. Mr. Katz is e natural stage artist because he takes simplicity to the lengths of genius. There is nothing to his designs for "Polaris," except the ballet looks mysteriously exciting. The set is just a skeletal cube and the costumes are merely bikini bathing suits in various tones of blue. Yet the result, notably helped y Jennifer Tipton's elegant-dramatic lighting, is quite finitely a visual statement. Mr. Taylor's choreography is an experiment in focus and sexture. The ballet is in two parts. The choreography for the second part is a precise repeat of the choreography for the first—only the cast, the music and the lighting have been changed. It is a curious effect, because given this changing context, the very same dances take on different shades of kinetic significance. It is most exciting and was beautifully danced by Mr. Taylor's excellent company. The company has changed a lot in personnel over the vears, but is now looking exceptionally good. Among the more recent recruits to the company, I notice more and more Ruth Andrien, who shared what might be thought of as the ballet's leading role with Carolyn

The fluency of Mr. Taylor's choreography was every-where evident. The man invents dances with an amazingly deft ease—nothing is strained or forced. The program opened with "Aureole," which has become Mr. Taylor's signature work and is now, incredibly enough, 14 years old. It still sets the seal on his particular style, and the company still dances it

"3 Epitaphs" is an even older work, now dating back 22 years. It is one of those rare instances of pure choreographic humor and is a tiny masterpiece. The pro-gram was completed with Mr. Taylor's major work from last year, "Runes," a complex Druidic-like ritual, and is one of the most beautiful things he has ever created. It evokes a world of sur-prising mystery, and its choreography has an air of floating together. Yes, Mr. Taylor is that very rare creature, a choreographic genius. We are lucky to have him

McGuinn Intense at the Bottom Line

Roger McGuinn, the ex-chief-Byrd, struggled into town with various backup bands, the results were pretty dis-piriting. Mr. McGuinn seemed dead and abstracted up there on stage, woodenly going through his music in a way that served only to remind one of what he had once

But now Mr. McGuinn speaks eagerly of his regeneration at the hands of Bob Dylan and the Rolling Thunder Revue. His appearances on the Dylan tour were well received, but they nestled firmly within the context of the whole. This week during a three-day stint at the Bottom Line that ended Thursday. Mr. McGuinn sounded regenerated indeed.

He remains an odd performer, to be sure-stiff and awkward, with a mad gleam in his eyes. And his lyrics co-written with (often Jacques Levy, whom Mr. Dylan borrowed for his "Desire" album) still seem a bit prosaic. Even his music, while pleasant, isn't likely to inspire a raft of cover versions. (There were also songs from the Byrds days and music by Joni Mitchell and Mr. Dylan.)

But the intensity that Mr. McGuinn and his current band (Bruce Barlow and Lance Dickerson, the rhythm section from Commander Cody and the Lost Planet Airmen, plus a guitarist, James Q. Smith) bring to the proceedings was nothing short of exhilarating. It was a wild, manic intensity, obviously indebted to Mr. Dylan's current performing style, but it never flattened the songs into same-

Mr. McGuinn sang with a hoarse fervor and played the guitar with agility, and the three others backed him with inspired energy. Even the roadies scuttled on and off the stage as if possessed. The crowd was delirious at the end, and had every reason

The concerts opened with Byron Berline and Sundance, bluegrass-oriented group of Los Angeles session men, most of them originally from the Southeast. Mr. Berline plays the fiddle very well, but his otherwise pleasing set lackes ... individuality. JOHN ROCKWELL set lacked real conviction or

Copyright Bill Gains In Congress

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP) - The House Judiciary Committee today approvd a bill to revise the copyright law. The revision would insure that an author or composer would be protected during his lifetime.

The measure, which would be the first thorough modernization of the law since 1909, also takes into account problems created by such technological changes as the widespread use of copying devices and the development of cable television and juke-

The bill provides that copyright of new material would extend for 50 years beyond the life of the author. Under existing law, a copyright lasts for 28 years and may be extended for another 28. The new bill would permit the extension of existing copyrights for a total of 75 The bill has guidelines for limited reproduction of copyrighted materials — for example by libraries or teachers -but would in general leave it to the courts to decide when such reproduction is on a scale to be an infringement of an author's rights.

It would establish licenses and require them to pay rovalties. It would also require the Public Broadcasting System to pay royalties for the use of nondramatic literary and musical works. They are now exempt.

Jukeboxes would be subject to an $8 license fee, with for cable-television systems

proceeds to be pooled for distribution to holders of copyrights. The basic royalty to a composer for music re-corded on disks or tape would be increased from 2 cents to

The bill is a revision of one passed by the Senate last February. If the House passes it, a conference would be required to settle the differ-ences. Committee sources said they would move promptly to try to have Congressional ac-tion completed in this session

Piero Is Stolen From Milan Home

MILAN, Italy, Aug. 26 (AP)—A 15th-century work by Piero Della Francesca was stolen from an apartment here as the custodian ignored an alarm bell, the police said today.

Thieves broke into a down-town building, the authorities reported, on the night of Aug. 7. An alarm went off, but the custodian said he did not pay attention to it because he thought it had been triggered by a chance electri-cal contact. The work's owner, Vittorio de Viasi, 81 years old, was away and did not discover the theft until he returned vesterday.

The oil painting, on a wood tablet eight and a half inches high and seven inches wide, is a portrait of a noble woman. Experts put its value at $360,000.

Singer's Death Ruled 'Not Suicide'

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 27 (UPI) — Kenneth Walker, lead singer of the popular American group "The Platters," died by self-ingested methadone poisoning but did not commit suicide, the City Coroner ruled today.

Mr. Walker, 20 years old, of Los Angeles, was found dead in a hotel here last May A senior detective testified that the singer had been us-ing heroin. But in statements presented to the coroner, other members of the Platters said that they had never seen Mr. Walker take heroin. Coroner T. M. Weir, in announcing his findings, said it was clear that foul play was not involved in Mr. Walker's

AULD LANG SYNE The double bill tomorrow through Tuesday of Hollywood's "Tales of Manhattan" (1942) and "Flesh and Fantasy" (1943), two episodic vehicles with all-star casts directed by Julien Duvivier, has twofold significance at the downtown Theater 80 St. Marks (254-7400) as its sixth-anniversary program.

This is the only New York revival showcase active in restoring to circulation certain vintage films that were unavailable because of "lost" prints or legal clearances. Howard Otway, the theater proprietor, has waited more than 20 years to show "Tales of Manhattan," until the res-toration of the climactic sequence, deleted because of the political turmoil surrounding Paul Robeson, The footage now brings the movie to a happy conclusion as Mr. Robeson and Ethel Waters, on a Southern farm, find a tail-coat (linking the various episodes) and drape it as a scarecrow, to jubilant singing by the Hall Johnson Choir.

The original version of "Tales of Manhattan"—and "Flesh and Fantasy" has not been shown commercially in years—joins some 40 vintage features rescued from obscurity, in part or whole, by the East Greenwich Village thea-ter. Among the others are "Follow the Fleet." the sec-ond "Show Boat," the first "Cimarron" and "The Front Page," "The North Star," "Roberta," "Flying Down to Rio" and "Roxie Hart."

SWEET TALK Bees, anyone? You can meet a queen, a drone and a worker today. when the Farmers Market Jamaica once again presents the Honey Bee Program of Bernard J. Beck, a Long Island beekeeper. On view will be a one-frame, glassenclosed observation hive with live bees that have sweet dispositions. Also up for inspection at the market in Queens will be a complete modern hive, a cross-section hollow tree and beeswax Mr. Beck will be on hand most of the day to discuss some little-known aspects of bee life, such as man's use of bees to increase food yields. Another scheduled topic is honey, one of the world's first packaged foods. There is also the use of water by bees—an air-conditioning system that man copied. Raw, unprocessed Long Island blend honey will also be on sale today. Visiting hours at the market, at Parsons Boulevard and Jamaica Avenue, are 8 A.M. to 5 P.M. on Saturdays, Tuesday and SUMMER SPREAD spic-and-span facade of the Mannattan Art & Antiques Center can mislead midtown browsers convinced that merchandise bargains outside of department stores require more weatherbeaten or modest premises. You can look around here freely—and free —in a three-level enclosed mall with 35 shops and galleries, and find antiques and objets d'art priced from $100,000 down to around $5. The shopping complex is at 1050 Second Avenue, between 55th and 56th Streets. Hours are 10:30 A.M. to 6:30 P.M. Mondays through Saturdays, and noon to 6 P.M. on Sundays, with on-premises park-

Some of the more imposing novelties, priced accordingly, are well worth a look, such as the Meissen porcelain paintings. There are sevenfoot-tall Sevres palace vases, circa 1800, the tallest ever made. Lewd Rock and Other Skillful Silliness

By RICHARD EDER in Porno Chic-such movies as "Emmanuelle" and "The Story of O"-the action is given a lush romantic treatment, and the clothes, no longer on the actors, seem to be draped over the cameras: hence the misty effect.

With "Alice in Wonder-land" Porno Chic acquires a subdivision: Porno Cute.
Seizing vaguely on several episodes from Lewis Carroli, the film's authors have made an animated version of Playan annual version of Play-boy magazine. The sex is as as tinkly, the humor as coy and the message as purita-nically determined that peo-ple must have from ple must have fun. Kristine de Bell—who, not coincidentally, is receiving considerable exposure in Playboy—is cast as Alice. After a frigid session with her boyfriend, Alice finds berself following a man dressed up as a write rabbit. He leads her to Wonderland—actually a patch of greenery near Clinton, N. Y.—and there she receives various types of sexual initiation at the hands and other parts of a Mac Hatter, Humpty, Dumpty, Tweedledum and Tweedledee, the King and

Like many other American women married to politi-cians, they play an active part in British political and community life, as American wives of members of Parlia-

"A politician and his fam-ily must become as involved in the constituency as hu-manly as possible," said Mrs. Owen, a former Long Islander and wife of David Owen, the M.P. for Plymouth and Min-ister of State for Social

Mrs. Owen is one of about a dozen wives of British poli-ticians who include Cincinnati-born Caroline Benn, an education specialist and wife of the M.P. for Bristol and Secretary of State for Ensecretary of State for Energy, Anthony Wedgewood Benn; New Yorker Emily MacFarquhar, a journalist married to M.P. Roderick MacFarquhar, and Elaine Rawlinson of Newport, the wife of the Attorney General, Sir Peter Rawlinson.

"Good Organizers"

Although they vary in age, style and political party. they all have certain definable American qualities. "American women are good organizers," said the American wife of a peer, who did not want herself identified. "They have a vitality that turns Englishmen on."
"Englishmen of a certain power-bent class want someone who will look nice, drive the kids, and have a party for 50 people. American women are educated and efficient. They pitch in and help out whatever is around

"A politician needs a wife who does things—who has both mental and physical energy," said Ernestine Carter, an American who left the states in 1937 for England, where she married an Englishman and became a well-known journalist "Englishwomen are not good joiners," she said. "Americans get more things started. They have tremen-dous adaptability. And they are classless. For the wife of a politician, an American accent is a safe bet."

Vitality, energy, organization, classlessness. A tradition of American women such as Jenny Churchill, Nancy Astor and the Duchess of Windsor.

Limiting Her Drive

All of the women interviewed seem to have these characteristics. All are selfstarters who can and do manage motherhood, work and responsibilities to a politician-husband.

"I'm sure I've taken on too much in the eyes of some of my friends," said Mrs. Owen. who is the mother of two young sons, and runs her own business as a literary agent. "I had to learn to set limits to my own drive," she said.

'I know I can never be as helpful in the constituency as I would be without working and I have to live with that. Day-to-day life is totally unpredictable. I have to accept that as a mother I won't be as consistent as I would like to be," she said.

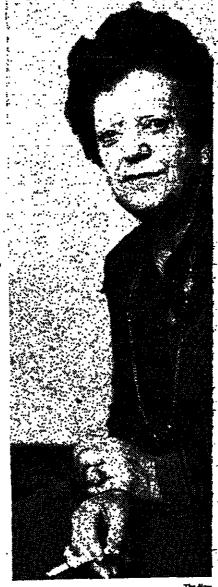

As an active participant in her husband's West Country constituency of Plymouth, Mrs. Owen finds her American attitudes and accent an advantage. "People are very pro-American in Plymouth," she said. "During the war they made lots of friends with sailors. And because I am American, I am accepted without reference to any particular social class," she said. Sitting at her pine desk overlooking the Thames in the Owens' reconverted dockside house in the Limehouse section of London, Mrs.

Owen said that American disregard for class identities could be an advantage for a British politician.

No Class Consciousness

"Americans have a kind of classlessness. It's partly the way we behave. We talk to the guy who sweeps the streets and the man at Harrods with the same voice. It's not our heritage to treat people differently," she said. As a newcomer to Britain and political life in 1969, Mrs. Owen did not find an easy transition from her job of buying and selling rights for a French publisher in New York. "I had been working for seven years. Marriage was not essential to me. I was nervous about getting the kind of job I deserved,"

"I knew I had to have a certain flexibility, but I was a drag to live with. I was bad about protocol and titles. My laughter was louder than an Englishwoman's. I argued more, Being brought up in a land of extremes is hard to get rid of, and I didn't want

Writer of Profiles

Mrs. Crosland, whose great, great, great grandfather, El-kannah Watson, was Benjamin Franklin's private secretary, and whose uncle and father were both Pulitzer prize journalists, has since then made a name for herself as a writer of profiles English public figures-particularly politicians. "Politicians fascinate me as a breed." she said, putting a cigarette into an amber cigarette holder. "It used to be assumed here that women wrote only for women's pages. The big breakthrough was persuading people that woman could actually interview men."

Both in her work, and as the wife of Anthony Crosland, Britain's Foreign Secretary, Mrs. Crosland finds that being an American is an asset. "You can move across the social spectrum more easily," she observed. As she wrote in 1974 in "Beyond the Image," a book of her profiles, "True, there are people who can't stand Americans and some who can't stand women. But these are the only preconceived attitudes that I am likely to encounter. The subtle and infinite range of prejudices that one Englishman feels for another cannot apply to me. He can't place me."

Sheila Moore is the wife John Moore, Conservative party vice-chairman. She is one of the most active American wives in political life. She met her husband in 1960 when they were both stu-dents at the London School of Economics. They married in 1962, and after a few years in America, they returned to Britain in 1965.

A professional writer (she has just completed "A Practical Guide for Volunteers"), she manages three children and a large house in Wimbledon and shares a deep commitment to her husband's political ideology.

She is an enthusiastic participant in his constituency of Croydon central, an urban area about 20 minutes away from their home, and goes there at least twice a

Marginal Seat

"I go to coffee mornings, meetings of the social service guild, any Croydon function I can possible get to. It's an exceedingly marginal seat, and given the danger of losing it, I do as much as I can. "It's rarely given to peo-ple to make-any kind of im-pact," said Mrs. Moore over a cup of coffee in her gar-"That's why I work so hard. Britain is engaged in a life and death struggle, with important implications for the entire West." She is interested in American politics and was an active Democrat in Illinois in the early 60's. She says her being an American has been an advantage in her political commitments here.

"Having to learn a new system makes you see it more clearly. In America I never would have understood the political issues on the real dangers to the West. Here I understand absolutely. I know why I'm a Conserva-tive, and I believe passionately that they should win," she said.

Splitting Hairs Over a Fuzzy Female Issue

In some cultures, bodily hair-a bit of a mustache or fuzz on the legs-is supposed to add to a woman's sex appeal. Not so in this country. The girl in the bikini on an American beach is supposed to be as slick as a whistle, anything more than some light down on her arms is usually considered too

A few years back, some feminists balked about the "hairless ideal" of our culture, and there was a halfhearted move to give the razor back to men. But it didn't really catch on. Beauty salons specializing in hair removal are busy and razor manufacturers report that customers for their "feminine" razors are on the increase. Hair removal, in any women are unhappy sporting 5 o'clock shadows.

Hair follicles are normally found on all areas of the body except the paims and soles, according to the American Medical Association's committee on cutaneous health and cosmetics. How thick or obvious "unwanted" hair grows depends on a number of factors, family or racial characteristics particularly. Mediterranean and Semitic races are usually hairier than Negroes, while Mongolians and American Indians are the least hairy. Other factors can affect the growth of unwanted hair. Hormone imbalance, for one. Some drugs may cause it, or even exposure to the sun.

The Easiest Way

Most women discover that they can just blame their ancestry for the problem and find ways to deal with it cosmetically. The easiest, and most common method is shaving. There are a number of regular or electric razors designed especially for women, usually curved so they can be used in the underarm area. Borrowing a husband's razor usually brings down his wrath, but a lot of women do, anyway.

Shaving does not encourage hair growth as is popularly believed, says the A.M.A., but a short regrowth is bristly and masculine looka good choice for facial hair. you have the patience and the growth isn't heavy, try tweezing. Or find an expert. Electrolysis is the most > nermanent, most time-consuming, most expensive and possibly most painful way to get rid of unwanted hair. A family doctor or skin specialist may be able to suggest a reliable technician.

There are currently two professional methods com-peting in this field.

The older one—generally known as electrolysis-involves inserting a needle into the hair follicle and then applying an electric current to destroy the hair bulb, then tweezing out the hair itself. This method has been around for nearly half a century. The operator should be chosen with care, whatever the method. She does not have to be licensed in New York State, but is trained by the manufacturers of the equipment she uses. You Feel It, But . . .'

"You feel it, but it doesn't really hurt," is the way one technician answered the question of pain involved in regular electrolysis. It can also leave a small scab, par-ticularly if done in areas where clothing rubs. Mainly, it is time-consuming. A woman with hairy legs could devote years to electrolysis. because she can stand only so much of it at a time.

The fee, at a salon such as the one at Saks Fifth Avenue, is $35 an hour, $28 for 45 minutes and $18 for 30

Depilatron, a method that entered the field a year ago, is more expensive, ranging from $15 for 15 minutes to $45 an hour. It is gaining in popularity, because it eliminates pain and the subject can take longer treatments. (A particularly hirsute client at the Bergdorf Goodman salon said she had tried both methods and much preferred

The Depilatron operator grasps the individual hair with a tweezer attached to an electric device. She holds the hair for about 30 seconds. activating a short-wave charge that is said to cause destruction of the hair bulb, then pulls it out. Since the tweezer does not come in contact with the skin, removal is said to be painless and there should be no danger of growth) and the complexity of electrical depilation, there is waxing, possibly the most satisfactory method for large areas such as arms or legs, as well as facial hair.

A Need for Courage

Waxing can be done at home, but it is messy and takes courage to do on oneself, since it is like removing adhesive tape and should be done firmly and quickly. It's easier to let the professional

Waxing involves heating the wax until it is spreadable, then applying it with a spatu-la to a limited area at a time. Strips of cloth are pressed on the wax and then the whole business is yanked off. Properly done, a good deal of the hair is pulled out by the root. This doesn't mean the hair is destroyed, but re-growth takes longer than in shaving. Women who have been waxing fans for a long time say that they seem to grow less hair; just as sometimes happens with constant tweezing, the hair may never grow back. Waxing is fast—a good operator can usually do both legs in 10 minutes. It involves sôme pain and can cause a temporary rash on sensitive areas such as the upper lip. Too hot wax can burn, so again the operator should be expert. The woman who has a great deal of body hair might consider waxing on large areas and electric depilation for her face.

Waxing prices at a salon such as Individually Yours, 14 East 60th Street (it specializes in depilation) range according to the area treated: $20 for both legs up to the bathing suit line; $10 for half legs up to the knee, $5 for

There are, of course, depilatory creams, which chemically dissolve the hair at the skin surface. They don't smell as bad as they used to, but they can cause irrita-tion if improperly used and are not the best choice for the face. In principal, they do the same job as shaving, and have no effect on the rate of regrowth.

The A.M.A. has a booklet that answers many questions on hair removal. Called "The Hair You Can Do Without," it is available free (for single copies) from the A.M.A. Order Department, OP-396, 535 North Dearborn Street. Chicago, Ill. 60610.

it is a Wednesday after-noon on East 78th Street, where money-eating brown-stones live. Wednesday afternoons are when those brown-stones get rid of their worn-out refrigerators, clothes trees and floor lamps that no longer stand up, three-legged chairs, desks without draw-ers, outgrown cribs, cardboard boxes of old emotions (The fashion in emotions having changed, it was necessary to purchase a new set), bedsprings of broken marriages—all the big stuff.

This is because the picky and choosy sanitation trucks have agreed on Thursday mornings to take away the big stuff on East 78th Street. The rest of the week they won't. The rest of the week they expect the garbage—no junk, please—to be in cans or bundled up in green plas-tic bags, which tidiness con-fers on one's garbage an anonymous dignity. It is not to be distinguished from any-body's else's garbage. All garbage has been drafted into the same green army. With the big stuff, of course, you are exposed for the neighbors and strangers to see. Of the many artifacts of our brief span, junk is the saddest: This I no longer want or need; this failed me.

Let us say that, as a ges-ture of solidarity with Big Mac and Philip Morris, you have bought into one of those brownstones. (It is, in fact, the second time you've bought the same house, but that's another novel.) You have gone so far as to engage some Russians to play with the plaster and knock down the walls. Their exuberance needs working room. And so, on this particular Wednesday afternoon, you are getting rid of the left-overs of a number of lives.

A commotion is thereby A commotion is thereby caused. It seems that the whole city has suddenly decided to tour East 78th Street, to peer into the closets of your head. There are the furtive types, who size up the house from across the street, advance with wary street, advance with wary glances in all directions, pounce on the picnic hamper and fairly sprint to freedom.

There are the soldierly types, who march eyes-front down the block, spot the one-wheeled shopping cart from a dozen yards away, seize it without breaking stride and continue on their mission.

There are the grave and meticulous assayers of your discards, who will hold up a torn shower curtain as if, through a jeweler's glass in the mind's eye, to compare it with the colors of a palace they are building elsewhere, the tiles of their empire. There are also those who have made of your dumping ers with infants in strollers, a retired pharmacist, a college student: They may have staked out a table too small now for your departed children, or a music stand, or the venetian blinds, or five years' worth of Life magacines—the Life that died so that People might sin-but they have no intention of going anywhere for awhile. They conspire to chat, Your relics are the small change of their conversation.

A young man who will convert two of your doors into a desk needs some extra muscle to transport them. An elderly woman promises to stand guard over the doors to stand guard over the doors until he can return with help.
"What else have I to do?"
she asks. "I'd probably be somewhere with a bottle,
that's what else."

A mother of three tells you, when you bring out a trunk that once went to Mexico: "I hope you have a good life in your house"—an oddly neutral remark, half way between a benediction and a curse. What is it, anyway, that you have given away? Facts; evidence.

Later, around five o'clock, when you are standing at a naked window with a hammer in your hand, thinking about the ecology of junk and the recycling of lives, the professionals arrive in a truck. It is a lightning strike. They hop out, scoop up the components for a hi-fi system that always seemed to play the wrong music, the cables for an intercom that hadn't managed to improve communication, a basinette and a trike, and they are gone. They didn't even bother to turn off their motor.

This figures. Professionals would know which days, in which neighborhoods, brownstones would be ridding themselves of the higher-quality junk, the scrap iron of affluence. There are dealerships.

When the private garbage collectors were on strike last rear, it was possible to visit lower Manhattan and see that in Chinatown the garthat in Chinatown the gar-bage was packed in bags as neat as bricks, as though they were building a Great Wail. Whereas, two blocks away, in Little Italy, there hadn't been any garbage. It had been mysteriously col-lected different binds of or lected: different kinds of organization. You are not offended at this professionalism, or at least not as much offended as you were by the passers-by who looked over your de-posits and sadly shook their heads, quickly to move on: or by the fact that the pro-prietor of the antique shop four stoops down didn't trouble himself to look at all.

On Thursday morning everything is gone. Regrets are portable. In your time you've cleared out many apartments and houses in almost as many towns, disposed of the wrappers and bones of lots of ideas. Then why the disquieting "What if?": What if they are organized? What if, for years, they have collected your junk to a purpose? What if, in some underground city, they are reconstructing your life from the secrets of character contained in what you threw out or left behind? Your inalienable right as an American to start fresh, paint the walls of your brain a different color, invent a new you every week, would be vio-lated. They would know the

High Cost Of Games Studied

By ROBERT TRUMBULL Special to The New York Times

OTTAWA, Aug. 27-Official post mortems on the Montreal Olympic Games opened this week with charges of extravagance in the preparations that included the rental of cranes in the construction for $1 million more than it would have cost to buy them.

However, contrary to earlier rumors, the hearings by a committee of the Quebec provincial legislature failed to disclose instances of fraud in staging the Games, unless the deception of the spectators at the closing ceremony by use of canned music and a taped broadcast from Moscow can be counted. cow can be counted.

For acoustic reasons, an official of the Montreal organizing committee for the Games testified, musicians of the Montreal Symphony Or-chestra only pretended to play, and the huge choir mimed the singing. The music at the closing ceremony on Aug. 1 actually came from recordings played over the stadium sound system. $500,000 Fee

The director of operations for the committee, Michel Guay, said that a contract with the musicians union required the committee to pay the orchestra members $500,000 in fees "whether they were present or not."

A supposedly live broad-cast from Moscow by satellite, projected on the stadium scoreboards that also func-tioned as huge television screens, was actually a video tape because of the time difference between the two cities, it was explained. The film showed ceremonies in Moscow connected with that city's hosting of the 1980

Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal caused a sensation at the inquiry when he stated that he would refuse to dip into municipal tax revenues to pay the city's $200 million share of the $800 million deficit onthe games. The cost of staging the event, which critics called "Dra-peau's folly," soared from an original projection of $310 million to $1.5 billion.

Drapeau insisted that the entire cost of the games would eventually be met by "self-financing" measures, such as a lottery and a new tax on tobacco, regarded by the mayor as an optional contribution by smokers.

Meanwhile the disposition of the $85 million Olympic Village is being debated. One or both of two towering structures, intended for permanent use as high-rent apartments, may be offered for sale by the province. The builders of the structure are involved in a kickback scan-

Hunter Title At Post Won By Gelding

BROOKVILLE, L.L., Aug. 27 -Nick McQuaid, a consistent fox-chaser all season, captured the final class and woh the junior working hunter championship: Division A, today at the Nassau County horse show.

Under gloomy skies at the C. W. Post College show grounds, the 6-year-old chestnut gelding finished his three days of action with 13 points—two blue ribbons and one second-place finish. Betsy Bolger's March On was second in the class and took reserve honors with 8 points.

Mick McQuaid is owned by Henry Rudkin of Southport, Conn., and was ridden by Katherine Burdsall.

Sports News Briefs

Coast Team Gains Little League Final WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Aug. 27 (AP)—Paul Sargis, the winning pitcher, homered leading off the sixth inning today to break a scoreless tie and pace Campbell, Calif., to a 3-0 victory over Richmond in the Little League World Series. The United States West champions, with a 15-0 won-lost record, earned the right to meet Tokyo for the title tomorrow in this 30th annual tournament for 11-and 12-year-olds. After Sargis ripped Brian Smith's first pitch just over the center-field fence, the Californians took advantage of several lapses by the United States South entry to score a pair of unearned runs. Successive errors with one out put runners at second and third. Smith uncorked a wild pitch to allow one runner to score, and a throwing error by the catcher on the same play brought in another. Sargis, who came on in the fourth for the starter, John Murphy, gave up just two hits and struck out seven in the three innings he worked. Smith, who pitched no-hit ball for four innings, finished with a three-hitter with three strikeouts. In the consolation game for fifth place, Forestville, Conn., topped Kaiserslautern, West Germany, 4-1.

African Warns of Further Boycott

LONDON, Aug. 27 (UPI)-The African boycott of the Olympic Games will be carried on to the 1978 Common-wealth Games, in Edmonton, Canada, unless New Zealand changes its policy of sports ties with South Africa, the sec-retary of the Supreme Council for Sport in Africa said

Samoyed Gets a Best And a Mark

CHESTER, N.J., Aug. 27-A Samoyed came out of the Midwest today and proceeded to make history for the breed when he was named best of 1,155 dogs. The 7-year-old white coat is Dr. R. J. Hritzo's Ch. North Start King's Ransom, from Hubbard, Ohio, and his victory at the Schooley's Mountain fixture was his seventh top award.

"That's a record for Samoyeds in the United States," said Tom Glassford, his handler. "He was one of four with six bests. Now he's all alone."

Ranse, as he is called, be-came a champion when he was only 10 months old and then was shown sparingly by his owner, a surgeon. During the past year, however, the dog has been campaigned extensively and he has been doing well. When Ranse won the group today it was No. 16. He is the sire of nine have finished this year.

On the way to the final, the northern breed represen-Bouvier des Flanres, Cr. Taquin du Posty Arlequin, who had been best in show in his last six appearances. Two weeks ago, the Belgian import swept through the Mispillion, Talbot and Annapolis fixtures.

Caught in Traffic

Before the evening began the Golden Gaters faced the unlikely passibility that their top female doubles player, Betty Stove, might not make the match in time. Then the Sets ran wild over the Western Division champions.

Sandy Mayer, using a wide variety of backhands destroyed Tom Okker as he had in their two previous meetings of this series. This time the score was 6-1 as Okker showed a decided disinterest in hustling after Mayers' wellplaced shots.

Then Mrs. King and Miss Wade defeated Francois Durr and Miss Stove, 6-2. The pleasant but dispassionate crowd became most vocal in that match when a point for the Golden Gaters was called back and a set was played. The umpire gave no explana-

Wanted: Sweetfeed

Without eating like a glutton, the average racehorse can put away nine or 10 quarts of oats a day. Add some hay, some sweetfeed and a carrot or two, and the daily feed bill at Aqueduct, Belmont Park or Saratoga climbs to $6, double what it was a few years ago.

That's just for openers, a basic diet capable of keeping chronic failure walking around the barn with enough energy to impress a hopeful owner. Win or lose, racehorses also need trainers to train them, grooms to groom them, hot-walkers to walk them, exercise boys or girls to exercise them and watchmen to watch them. Beyond that, they need special services that produce regular fees for jockeys, veterinarians, blacksmiths, transport companies, insurance agents and vitamin salesmen. New York trainers will be handing out this kind of information during the next few weeks as they testify before the State Labor Relations Board at hearings involving union attempts to organize the 2,000 or more stablehands who take care of the horses at thoroughbred tracks operated by the New York Racing Association.

Compared to this battle, the valet dispute settled yesterday at upstate Saratoga was nothing more than a minor skirmish. With picket lines gone and jockey valets back at work, the Sarztoga meeting can come to a peaceful conclusion today with the running of the Hopeful Stakes. But New York horsemen are far from hopeful about the larger dispute involving backstretch workers, most of whom are employed by trainers. That fight will intensify after racing returns downstate to Belmont on Monday.

"It's a very grave situation," says Eugene Jacobs, president of the New York Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association. "We just can't afford to pay stablehands $200 or more a week, because the owners have told us it's impossible. A lot of owners and trainers would have to move their stables out of New York."

Got the Doll Right Here . . .

The competition between two unions for jurisdiction over backstretch personnel offers a bizarre twist on the old racetrack "Guys and Dolls" theme. In one corner, based in Long Island City, is Local 807 of the Brotherhood of Teamsters. Its Manhattan-based rival: the Racetrack and Backstretch Employees Division of the International Union of Dolls, Toys, Playthings and Allied Products.

Of the two unions, the Teamsters would appear to have more bargaining muscle than the Pollmakers. Most horse vans are driven by Teamsters, and most of the horses that run at Aqueduct have to be vanned there from Belmont on a daily basis. Until the Teamster-represented valets removed their picket lines at Saratoga, no Belmont-bound vans were able to leave the upstate track.

Meanwhile, Jacobs continues to warn Governor Carey of an "impending crisis" in New York racing "because of the threat of unionization of backstretch help." The H.B.P.A. division headed by Jacobs consists of 760 horse owners and about 90 of New York's 175 trainers. According to the horsemen, an owner in New York can easily spend $14,000 to $15,000 a year maintaining a thoroughbred in first-class

New York trainers estimate it costs them $34 a day for each horse in their barn. Yet most trainers here charge their owners no more than about $30 a day per horse, hoping to make money on the 10 percent cut they get from purses earned by the horses they saddle. A majority of horses, even in New York, don't earn enough to meet ex-

They're Holding the (Feed) Bag

"Everything has doubled in the last few years except the purses," Jacobs said over the phone from Saratoga. "Oats cost $11 a bag. Hay goes for $140 to $160 a ton. There are trainers in New York who can't pay the feed bills because their owners have kept them waiting."

That's the horsemen's argument. But there's another side to the coin. In racing's feudalistic structure, grooms and other stablehands have always been the serfs. Conditions are better now than they used to be, partly because of the growing presence of women on the backstretch. But the predominately black and Hispanic stablehands are still the forgotten men of racing.

In a top stable, a New York groom gets around $135 for a six-day week. To keep his boss and three horses happy, he usually gets up before dawn. Frequently, his "tied-up time" schedule brings him back to the barn at regular intervals. Hot-walkers make $90 to $100 a week, exercise riders $150 to $175.

Seven years ago, in a boycott aimed at gaining state assistance for backstretch workers, horsemen shut down Aqueduct for nine days. But the boycott failed, and the stablehands went back to ladling out sweetfeed for the horses. Now the hired hands want some of that sweetfeed for themselves. With the Teamsters and Dollmakers betting on them, the odds appear to have shortened.

Front-Running Yanks Seek More Players for Title Bid

By MURRAY CHASS

ANAHEIM, Calif., Aug. 27-The Yankees began their final visit to California desrerately hoping to avoid set-ting a 1976 team record. It wasn't their performance in their game against the Angels that would figure in any kind of record. Rather it was their performance in the roster shuffling game that was in jeopardy.

The Yankees have gone for three whole weeks without making any roster changes and that is most uncharacteristic of the George Steinbren-ner-Gabe Paul-Billy Martin Yankees, At times this season, players were arriving and departing so frequently that Yankee Stadium resembled Grand Central Terminal.

and shakers made only one roster adjustment in the first weeks of the season, but that was a time for getting their feet planted solidly on the ground, studying the lay of the land, so to speak. Once they saw which way the land lay, though, they took off.

For the Yankees, the land sloped steeply toward first place and they quickly rolled into that spot and established themselves as the prime threat for the division crown. Now most teams that entrench themselves in that position would be content with maintaining a stable situation and continue winning with the players they won with the first five

The Yankees would like to end this dry spell before next Wednesday with the acquisition of someone who might help them in their first postseason endeavor in a dozen years. She says that her parents are happy that she is happy here—that they know defecting was best for her. But she misses them, her parents, her sister and her dog. She wants to hug them and kiss them again. She is sure that she will see them again, but she isn't sure when.

and he said the Army would "search out" cheaters "with whatever evidence is provided." Later, one of the defense lawyers said that the accused cadets who had drawn up the effidavits were in fact preparing to turn them over.

More than 200 cadets have been implicated so far in illegal collaboration on a take-home test in March. Many of the more than 100 who have resigned or who have been found guilty have said that 400 to 500 cadets actually were involved.

Army Secretary Lauded Senator Nunn praised Secretary of the Army Martin R.

Hoffmann for recent admissions and concessions in the scandal, which has also focussed attention on the role of the honor code and its administration, but said the lawyers were hindering the investiga-

"If defense counsel are indeed serious about ascertaining the true extent of the cheating. they should make these allega-tions [contained in the affida-vits] available. Senator Nunn said. "Keeping them locked in a safe of a chaplain at West Point hardly serves the interests of a comprehensive and unfettered inquiry."

The reference was to the Rev. Thomas Curley, the Roman Catholic chaplian, who has accused academy officials of harsh treatment of cadets and uneven prosecution in the fivemonth dispute. Father Curley testified recently with cadets and lawyers before members of the House of Representatives.

West Point lawyersangrily denied Senator Nunn's allega-tion when asked to comment. They said they had been seeking to offer the cadets' testimony, if coupled with immunity, since last May, but had been refused by Mr. Hoffmann and the West Point superintendent, General Berry. The superintendent told members of Congress recently that he had versity. He died to offered some cadets immunity at the age of 66.

Capt. Arthur Lincoln, whose Capt. Arthur Lincoln, whose alleged intimidation by Acade zines and apparently some personal papers lingered on part of the Congressional testimony, said "they wanted our in the irregularly occupied clients to implicate others without immunity, thus facing charges of tolerating the cheating and getting thrown out." The Honor Code states that a cadet will not lie, cheat or steal nor tolerate those who do. There is only one penalty, expulsion, Mr. Hoffmann recently offered guilty cadets in the current scandal the possibility of readmission if they spent a year in the Army or some equal form of service.

Turn-Down Reported

"We offered the superintendent four hours of verbal testimony but he turned us down," Capt. Lincoln said. "The prose-cutors also asked for immunity when they realized the extent of this cheating, but they also were turned down."

In a speech apparently in-tended to coincide with a simi-lar statement by General Berry at West Point. Senator Nunn said the Army lawyers were guilty of "flagrant intimidaand added that "they should fish or cut bait."

The intimidation, an aide said, referred to the incriminating evidence allegedly held by the lawyers and its implications for a wider scandal as hostage for greater concessions than those offered by Mr. Hoffmann.

Captain Lincoln said: Now that it is too late, the Army said it wants the the Army and the rest elsewhere. and the internal review panel [established by the academy in June to hear the cases of cheat-ing cadets at their initial stage] has no investigative role." Senator Nunn complimented Army Secretary Hoffmann for his one-year readmission offer, saying it was "neither barsh nor unusual punishment, and similar to penalties some col-leges provide for cheating." He added that it would have been britter if Mr. Hoffmann had waited until the Corps of Cadets had voted to establish changes in the honor system and decided whether any such changes might have been retroactive. "Like the owner of an old automobile," Senator Nunn said, "the Corps of Cadets must decide whether there is enough life left in the honor system to justify simply a complete overhaul or whether the present system is beyond repair and should be replaced by a new one or by its total abandonment."

Mr. Stonehouse left the Labor Party before his 68-day trial began, But the party was eager to fill the Parlia mentary seat — considered "safe" for Labor—to protect its narrow margin in Commons. In a traditional procedure, it was announced in Parliament that Mr. Stonehouse had "applied as bailiff for the Chiltern Hundreds"— obsolete districts existing only in a legal fiction that enables a member of Parliament to resign with a semblance of grace.

A Basic Rule Is to Choose Bridge: A Dasic Rule 15 to Choose Safe Leader on Grand Slam

By ALAN TRUSCOTT

WEST

The basic guideline for leading against grand slams is to choose something safe. But there are rare occasions when this principle should be ignored, and the opening leader should select something unsafe-or apparently unsafe.

In the diagramed deal played at New York's famous Cavendish Club, North-South bid to a reasonable grand slam. North opened with a weak two-bid, and followed with a slightly eccentric re-bid. The forcing response of two no-trump asked him to describe his hand further, and the rebid of three notrump theoretically showed a solid diamond suit. North decided to regard the J-10 of diamonds as the equivalent of the queen, partly because a rebid of three diamonds would have sounded too discouraging. An Excellent Bet

South jumped confidently to seven no-trump. Expecting to find a dummy with A K Q x x x in diamonds, he could count 13 tricks if either minor suit came home. Even with the actual North hand, the grand slam was still an excellent bet. On a neutral lead South would have tested the clubs. and if this suit proved unsatisfactory he would have fallen back on diamonds, taking a first-round finesse against the queen.

Notice that the percentage play in diamonds is to finesse immediately. Playing a top honor first in case East has a singleton queen would be a bad error, for East is much more likely to have a small singleton than a singleton

But this normal sequence of events, which would have succeeded, was disturbed by Gino Scalamandre, sitting West Knowing that the diamonds were all on his left. he could tell that a diamond lead was safe. Earlier today, Lieut. Gen. Sidney B. But there is another part of Mr. Harrington's book that gives it more of a scholarly inclination than a first glance might indicate. For this book is divided into two parts, and while the second is modern political economy, the first ener-getically repackages Marxist thought as a output, eager to unveil its richness for readers too long starved by the simplistic concentration in high school curriculums on class warfare, economic determinism and totalitarianism. Marx was a prodigious writer and, unfortunately, often nearly unreadable by virtue of tortuous and sometimes contradictory prose. Even serious students more than occasionally confine themselves to his most readable—and, sadly, superficial and dialectical—works, the "Preface to Political Economy" and the "Communist Manifesto."

THE TWILIGHT OF CAPITALISM. By Michael Harrington. 446 pages. Simon & Schuster. $10.95.

Between 1968 and 1973, the Federal Government paid $15.5 billion to farmers in return for their leaving 233 million acres of land unplanted. According to a study by the National Farmers Union, the land could have produced 8,609 million bushels of wheat over the five years, or nearly a million bushels more than the actual United States harvest of 7,669 million bushels during the period.

Furthermore, a study by the Joint Congressional Committee staff calculated that in 1970, direct Federal subsidies for nonproduction totaled $5.2 billion, and the higher prices that resulted from the tightened supply cost the consumer an additional $4.5 billion.

But beyond these costs, Michael Harrington maintains in his latest book, the subsidies had a destructive social effect as well. Noting that between 1960 and .1974, the number of farms in the United States fell by 25 percent while the number of larger farms rose by 80 percent, Mr. Harrington concludes that the Federal payments went primarily to subsidize the giant agricultural enterprises belonging to concerns such as International Telephone & Telegraph and succeeded in ruining the poor farmer.

"Millions of rural Southerners were forced off the land because of the Govern-ment's program of subsidizing agribusi-ness," he argues. "They were driven into cities, totally unprepared to cope with the urban labor market and the brutality of life in the lower depths."

Cases of Inequity and Absurdity

This is, by example, the thesis of "The Twilight of Capitalism": That our society and our security are being destroyed by a Government (our own) wholly dominated from within and without by America's giant corporations and their representatives. Decisions in the legislature, the executive and the bureaucracy are made not in the common good as we have been told, but solely to benefit business and the rich who run it.

The book is packed with many cases of governmental inequity and absurdity. Mr. Harrington returns repeatedly, for instance, to the tax system, which he believes has become the servant of the rich, with unjust tax "reform" often cloaked in the guise of encouraging capital formation. He maintains that there has been no trend toward economic equality since 1945 and wenders whether there has even been any leveling in the 20th

In similar fashion, the reader is taken on a tour of other particularly outrageous contradictions of Government policy. We are told about housing and transportation policies that subsidize the automobiledriving suburbanite, about social welfare programs that often make taking a job a money-losing proposition, and in a lengthy, historical chapter, about an energy crisis brought on by a Government slavishly spending billions of dollars over the years to further oil company priorities, even at the risk of American energy vulnerability.

Few would disagree with this analysis. What is a little more difficult to concede is Mr. Harrington's "conspiracy theory of Government," which suggests, for example, that recessions are actively induced by the economic authorities at the behest of business to create a more profit-conducive system that would redistribute the wealth economic climate Even those prepared to believe that the Federal Government is

The Fall Seasona preview and an appraisal

Reporting on the views of the future by people associated with the arts, Clive Barnes reports "Dance was positively euphoric . . . the art world also seemed fairly happy, as did jazz, and perhaps more strangely, the theater.'

What are they so happy about?

That's what you'll find out Sunday in the Arts and Leisure Section of The New York Times.

In Dance, Anna Kisselgoff reports what the dance troupes will give you in the way of collective presentations this season. In art, John Russell says that what's new is mostly old, including a Museum of Modern Art presentation of paintings produced as far back as 1800 and an up-coming Andrew Wyeth exhibition at the Metropolitan.

John S. Wilson will explain why jazz sounds happier these days, and where it will sound best in the metropolitan area. Donal Henahan will discuss the importance of the new sound at Avery Fisher Hall, the outlook at the Metropolitan Opera under its new Music Director and at the City Opera in the 20th anniversary year of its Music Director. Peter Davis has good news for classical record fans. And John Rockwell tells you why there may be some special programming excitement on the rock scene this season.

What's going on in the theater? Mel Gussow says it's not an all-star blockbuster musical that's attracting attention this year, but a drama ... or rather three dramas . . . that's the hottest ticket in

And in movies, according to Guy Flatley, Hollywood is going to give you more sequels, more escapism, more horror. But there are some good serious films coming, too. Maybe even some great ones.

TV has some big surprises for you, too, according to Les Brown. Some super programs, a short series or two, some excitement you won't want to

Can we expect spectacular achievement, stunning discovery in the new season? Hilton Kramer discusses that possibility in a search for true genius that may or may not be part of the current cultural

And just what do we mean by culture? John Leonard asks that question and provides some fascinating answers to help set the stage for this most complete preview of a new season ever presented by The New York Times Arts and Leisure Section.

'Madness' in Argentina

Argentina's military rulers have used all the right words in condemning the mass murders of 47 people by right-wing terrorist organizations; but on the Government's record to date, its pledge to go all-out to find and punish the assassins must be taken skeptically. The good intentions for even-handed justice of President Jorge Rafael Videla and the officers of his circle seem always to be frustrated by military and police officials outside the ruling junta.

From the first days after the junta overthrew President Isabel Martinez de Perón last March, General Videla's stated policy has been to confine the war against leftwing guerrillas to the regular army and police. But an riltra-rightist paramilitary organization, the Argentine Anti-Communist Alliance, formed with official encouragement during Mrs. Perón's presidency, continues to murder and main almost at will, obviously with connivance of some police and intelligence sources.

The leftist guerrillas were first in the field and behaved with equal brutality. But security forces last month wiped out the leadership of the most effective leftist group, the Trotskyist People's Revolutionary Army, and seem to be gaining steadily against the renegade Peronist Montoneros, despite the murders of a retired general and an auto company executive last week. The rightwing extremists, however, seem to attack with indiscrimination and impunity a wide spectrum of liberals, intellectuals and refugees from other countries as well as Argentine leftists.

Terrorism has claimed nearly 900 lives in Argentina this year, more than 650 of them since the military takeover five months ago. The Government correctly describes the recent mass murders as "barbaric," attributable "only to the madness of irrational groups." But what will it take to arouse General Videla and his colleagues to action against those groups as energetic as that under way against their leftist counterparts?

Rescuing Burma

During much of the Vietnam conflict, Burma's President Ne Win was regarded by many as a wily leader whose policy of strict neutrality had avoided serious trouble with neighboring China and had preserved his southeast Asian nation from expansion of Chinese support to Communist and other frontier insurrections. As part of this policy, the American aid mission was sent packing; economic as well as military assistance from other capitalist nations was renounced, except for some Japanese programs that had their origin in post-World War II reparations.

But political agility proved to be the prologue for economic disaster. An economy already hogtied by an ideologically rigid system of state control, known as "the Burmese Way to Socialism," began to run downhill at an accelerating pace.

Output lagged behind population growth. Inflation ran at 30 to 40 percent a year with tax evasion assuring huge budget deficits. A smuggling trade perhaps half as large as legal commerce fed a black market that became the population's chief supplier of consumer goods. Progress toward a welfare state, which General Ne Win promised when he seized power and installed his military dictatorship in 1962, came to a halt.

As the Vietnam war wound down after 1970, Burma's President began to seek new foreign aid on a projectby-project basis. But the small sums obtained could not halt the economic deterioration.

A rescue operation on a larger scale, through an international consortium sponsored by the World Bank, has been under discussion since 1974. But only recently has President Ne Win indicated a willingness to accept the kind of World Bank supervision of Burma's overall economy that this would require. That willingness undoubtedly has been reinforced by the abortive military plot against the regime discovered last month.

President Ne Win's effort for a decade to turn Burma into a hermit nation undoubtedly will have to be reversed if Burma's offshore oil, copper and other minerals are to attract foreign investment. The consortium proposal has obtained support from Japan and Australia as well as the World Bank; but Washington and other potential donors remain skeptical about a regime that has turned the world's leading rice-exporting country into one that will have to import food by 1980, if the present farm system of compulsory rice sales to the Government at below-cost prices continues. Except for small retail trade, virtually all nonfarm economic activities have been nationalized under highly inefficient management. Prices are fixed by fiat, without relation to costs. Forestry, mining and transport have been neglected and supporting services have deteriorated.

The basic question the international consortium and the World Bank must face is whether Ne Win's repressive, corrupt and inefficient regime should be rescued along with Burma's economy. Without significant political change, as well as removal of ideological and economic blinders, future aid to Burma could well go down the same drain as that of the past,

Relapse in Midtown

In an all too brief interlude, while the city played host to the Democratic National Convention, the local authorities managed to make midtown safe and fit for those who work and play in that vital patch of metropolitan life. The welcome respite seems regrettably to have ended almost as soon as the last delegates returned to their home communities with glowing accounts about New York's hospitality and peacefulness.

We were cheered by those accounts and their potential impact on the polishing of New York's image. But cheers-and that image-will quickly fade if efforts to make midtown, and particularly the vital theater district, safe at night are once again abandoned, as they largely appear to have been already, opening the way to a return of fear and criminal assaults.

The night life that is concentrated in the theaters and restaurants throughout that area in the heart of Manhattan is a major part of New York's attraction as a metropolis; it is inextricably linked to the city's economic revival. Failure to make midtown permanently safe for those who seek entertainment, as well as for a full-scale return of hotels and offices, is a threat, not only to those who want to enjoy what was once, and must again become, the Great White Way, but to New York's recovery itself.

Strip Mining Again

Strip mining, when first practiced in the Appalachian coal fields, acquired an indelibly bad reputation. The strip miners, whether large companies or small operators, followed the law of "smash, grab and run." They buildozed hillsides as well as valleys, allowing soil and debris to be washed away, clogging mountain streams and leaving a desolate heritage of uprooted trees and ruined fields. Restoration of the landscape, even where it was practiced at all, was usually a patchy affair vulnerable to the first cycle of winter frost and hard

Against this background, Westerners have viewed the coming of the strip miners to their region with fear and trepidation. Strip mining continues in the East, but the huge, undeveloped reserves of coal are in Wyoming, Utah, Montana and neighboring states.

The major coal firms, some of them now owned by politically sophisticated oil companies, have become more cautious and urbane in their dealings with local communities and individual land owners than they once were in West Virginia and Kentucky. They are justified in asserting that techniques for restoring topsoil and vegetation have considerably improved. And, from a human standpoint, there is something to be said for stripping because, if carried out by well-trained workers, it is much less costly in life and bodily injury than conventional underground mining.

Nevertheless, Westerners are wary and understandably eager for stringent Federal legislation to protect their soil, their scenery, and their scarce water. They want a law to prevent mining on steep slopes and in alluvial valley floors and to establish a reclamation fund which would finance restoration once mining is finished. Since mining rights are often owned by Federal or state governments, by local school districts, or by individuals other than those who own the land itself, ranchers and farmers also favor an amendment sponsored by Senator Mike Mansfield of Montana: It would require that mining cannot proceed unless there is a voluntary agreement between the owners of the land and the owners of the Coal companies, no matter how urbane, are mindful of the profits to be made out of Western coal and are resolute in their opposition to such legislation. President Ford has twice vetoed bills to regulate strip mining and twice had his veto narrowly unheld.

Since the last attempt in the House of Representatives to override fell only three votes short, the House Interior Committee this week initiated yet another attempt to pass a bill. The House Rules Committee has to decide on Monday whether to add the strip-mining bill to the already crowded calendar of pending legislation. It is important that a law be enacted as soon as possible, but it is equally important that vital provisions not be traded away in the effort to win marginal votes. Since the threat of depredation of Western lands is still more potential than actual, there is time to work for a strong comprehensive law.

The Hoover Legacy

Talk about the F.B.I. still tends to conjure up the legacy of J. Edgar Hoover. But except for news of illegal burglaries and wiretaps, only limited information has come to light about the values and the attitudes that remain from the late Director's era. A few weeks ago, however, Edward J. Tulley, an instructor at the bureau's training academy at Quantico, Va., gave a speech to the association of Louisiana sheriffs which provided some insights into the Hoover legacy.

Mr. Tulley's speech was important not just because of its florid rhetoric and startling ideas-he called, for example, for a "warrior class" of law enforcement officers to "cry the battle alarm" against those "who demean our heritage by their mindless control of our lives"-but because as a trainer of new agents he is a purveyor of values.

Mr. Tulley attributed the bureau's troubles to "bureaucrats who have been honing their knives for the F.B.I. autopsy for the last 20 years" and to the "new intelligentsia . . . who are educated beyond their capacity to learn." Describing the role he thinks the "warrior class"—the police—should play in this society, Mr. Tuliey argued that the problem of crime would not be solved by the intelligentsia "whose continued assault on constitutional matters has given them more and more freedom to practice life styles which make Sodom and Gomorrah pale by comparison," but rather by members of the law enforcement community. It is they, the police, who "must make proper attitudes dominate [and] must rout out from all levels of government those bureaucrats whose lack of understanding brought us to the point where we are today."

The speech speaks for itself, but the question needs to be asked: For whom does Mr. Tulley speak? In appearing as an F.B.I. official on a public platform and calling for what can only be viewed as a police state, he clearly is not presenting the official position of the bureau or of its director, Clarence M. Kelley. But is such a distinction clear to his listeners in Louisiana and to his students in Quantico? It is a question that cannot be ignored by Mr. Kelley and his new team as he deals with the F.B.I.'s past and future.

Letters to the Edit

For Improved Rail Transportation

"How long, oh Lord, how long" are we the American people prepared to sit idly by, while our national ground transportation policies are set in Detroit, rather than in Washington where they rightfully belong? Why this outburst? At the risk of repetition for several reasons, but first and foremost, because now that the conventions are behind us, we have a chance in November to do something about this nonsense. The Ford Administration, because it says simply "too costly," has surrendered completely to the principle that the way to save money is not to spend any on "boondoggles" like Amtrak. That is to say, let the private automobile carry 87 percent of intercity passengers (at 1.2 persons per car) while the railroad (through Amtrak) carries less than 1 percent! At the same time, out of the other corner of its mouth this same Administration talks about "conserving energy." And now comes word that we are twice as dependent on Arab oil shipments this year as last, which led Secretary of Commerce Richardson to warn in late July, "if another embargo were imposed the results would be literally catastrophic." Think for a moment' where we would have been without the railroad (both passenger and freight) during World War II.

Judicial Conduct

To the Editor:

The New York Times (Aug. 16) reported Bernard Bloom's promise to give court assignments to "all my friends who are qualified and competent. And if they're from the political parties, all the better." If Mr. Bloom is elected Surrogate, and makes good on his promise, he may be in for a

The Code of Judicial Conduct, Canon 3B (4) requires a judge to exercise his power of appointment "only on the basis of merit, avoiding nepotism and favoritism." Similar proscriptions exist in other Canons of Judicial Ethics, the Rules of the New York State Judicial Conference and the New York State Public Officers Law. A judicial candidate's expressed intention to eliminate the clubhouse approach to the Surrogate's Court is hardly "baloney"; it's the law.

Mr. Bloom's perception of the judicial role is shocking. His statement could well be interpreted as an advertisement for political support, i.e. any otherwise qualified "friend" who

In 1975 a California judge was found, among other things, to have

Now as to the costs of beefing up the railroads; yes, it will cost plentybut as Paul Reistrup, able president of Amtrak, has pointed out, far less in the long run than relying on the highways, and especially on their upkeep in-the future. One of the chief reasons for these high rehabilitation costs is the deplorable condition the old Penn Central lines were found to be in when the company filed for receivership in 1970. One example will suffice to illustrate this point. When the Metroliner was instituted between New York and Washington in 1968 (as a result of the High Speed Ground Transportation Act of 1965-eleven long years ago), certain runs were scheduled for two and one half hours. Today the fastest time is three hours, not always maintained, and as a result of recent Congressional legislation currently scheduled roadbed improvements are to permit times of two hours and forty minutes, by 1981! Progress? Note: In September 1971 then Secretary of Transportation John Volpe recommended a reduction in Washington-New York travel time from three to CLEVELAND S. WHITE two hours. U.S. Military Presence To the Editor:

While I deplore the killing of two American officers in the Korean demilitarized zone on Aug. 18, I cannot help feeling that the greater crime was their being assigned to serve there. The presence of American Forces in Korea has been criticized by many American leaders, and the meaningless sacrifice of two lives over an altercation concerning tree pruning in the D.M.Z. gives added credence to their arguments. One hopes a Carter victory in November will bring a re-evaluation of our military presence worldwide.

Mr. Payne mentioned "several hundred dollars extra" to the consumer, he must be allowing the car companies an immodest profit.

Second, air bags are more effective than seat belt-shoulder harnesses in most crashes, even in the rare instances when the latter are used and work properly. Air bags with just the seat belt and not the shoulder harness are even superior. As they have shown in actual highway crashes, air bags not only protect drivers and innocent passengers in their cars but also reduce the risk of chain or secondary crashes by keeping the driver safe, conscious and in control of the vehicle.

Third, the interlock system was not my idea but that of Ford Motor Company. In 1971 Ford went to the White House to compel the Department of Transportation to delay the air bag standard in favor of a mandatory interlock system. I have long supported passive restraints over interlocks. Now auto companies in Michigan are advocating mandatory seat belt usage in order to avoid the responsibility of building such safety into their cars through passive restraints like air Fourth, if Mr. Payne is concerned with price more than the 10,000 lives and nearly one million injuries yearly which air bags could prevent, let him object to the many hundreds of dollars per car of mandatory style and gewgaws or to other hundreds of dollars due to the administered pricing power of this concentrated industry, or to the "mandatory options," to use an auto dealer's phrase, such as vinyl roofs.

Mexico's Stand on Internal

To the Editor:

Reference is made to the letter signed by several members of Congress, sent on Aug. 10 to President Ford, expressing concern about the political developments in Mexico, that was published as a paid advertisement in The Times, under the sponsorship of Radio Free Americas, soliciting contributions with the supposed purpose of "Alerting People throughout the Americas of the Communist Threat to all our Freedoms."

I wish to respond to the main points mentioned in the letter:

 The letter states that at least 1,000 foreign Communists are in key positions in the Mexican Government. Absolutely false. The decisions that affect the destiny of Mexico are taken exclusively by Mexicans. Nevertheless, the Government of Mexico is free to hire the services of any individual, as long as he has something positive to contribute

The Danger of Abandoning Taiwan

By Michael Reisman

NEW HAVEN-At the conclusion of his pageant-like China tour in 1972, Richard Nixon's communique "acknowledged" that "...all Chinese on either side of the Taiwan Strait maintain there is but one China and that Taiwan is a part of China."

If this wasn't a lie, it was, at least, very tricky. More than 80 percent of the people on Taiwan's side of the strait are Taiwanese: evidence indicated they neither saw themselves as nor wanted to be a part of China. In 1949 Chiang Kai-shek had retreated tó Taiwan and imposed his regime there. Through the "containment" era, we found it expedient to support Chiang's pretentions that he was China, ignoring his systematic suppression of Taiwanese national aspirations.

· Uproar over the communique and Mr. Nixon's burgeoning legal problems paralyzed his Taiwan plan. Now, with Henry Kissinger expected to leave office, the code words indicate the finale is imminent. Some speak vaguely of "normalization," without explaining that the abnormality is Peking's insistence on absorbing another state. Some insist ingenuously that documents saying Taiwan belongs to China are: "symbolic" and without effect; no one would execute such a "symbolic" document for his own home. Some talk ecumenically of the "Japanese" model-recognizing Peking but maintaining economic relations with Taiwan - without considering that ideological differences between the role in Taiwan's defense. Its ruse is made possible by our policy. Decoded, it's all the same thing: absorption, without U.S. protest, of Taiwan by China.

This "realistic" administration would ignore arguments of moral outrage and human tragedy in 16 million people, a state larger than two-thirds of the states of the world, being transferred to another, without consultation and against the popular will. But by its own pragmatic terms what are we getting by this act? Did China aid in the conclusion of the Vietnam War in ways more favorable to us or lend support in international organizations? Have Chinese affiliations pressured Moscow to live up to expectations of detente in the Middle East, Angola, at SALT. Helsínki? Have we gained anything substantial for the extraordinary economic, strategic and deterrent benefits we supplied Mao and Chou by publicly initiating this relationship?

Only the most narcissistic can really believe-tours and toasts notwithstanding-that Chinese leaders love us for ourselves. Like élites everywhere, they are concerned with the welfare of their nation; currently we are useful and necessary. By abandoning Taiwan, we gain no benefits that would not otherwise accrue because of continuing Chinese strategic dependence on the U.S., nor do we assure retention of benefits once we cease to be useful. To say that we are "normalizing" relations with Peking, as Allen Whiting puts it, begs the question. Political and Japan plays no symbolic or material U.S. and China are profound; thoughts of magic cures by sacrificing Taiwan are wishful, "Normalization" will mean the privilege of formal diplomatic relations, the head of our Peking Mission henceforth called Ambassador. It is hardly a final act as the Soviets learned; hostilities can erupt, relations can be broken, diplomats harassed, expelled and so on. Taiwan will not be redeemable.

C.I.A. analyst Roger Brown contends timely recognition before Mao's death will influence internal political struggles in Peking in our favor. This is fantasy. As the Teng Hsiao-ping and Hua Kuo-feng episode after Chou Enlai's death demonstrates, our experts haven't the faintest idea about what is transpiring in the Chinese power struggle. Who, for that matter, even knows Hua's views and affinities? The notion that even short-term continuation of Chinese trade with the West will weld their economy into ours ignores the Soviet planning experience and discounts the capacity of comnand economies in totalitarian societies to absorb jarring economic changes without popular upheaval. Set against these illusory gains, we stand to lose a powerful economy and a military actor whose strength and strategic position in certain projections are significant. We irrevocably lose a hedge against changes within China prejudicial to our interests. If a pro-Soviet faction gains ascendancy in Peking, an independent Taiwan would be very important. And don't forget: The Taipei elite is not inert. Clever and resourceful, it has, in Chiang Ching-kuo himself, latent contacts with Moscow, Hence our abandonment of Taiwan would not necessarily mean its fall to China; the U.S.S.R. could still step in as protector, guaranteeing independence in return for military servi-

Taiwan is an opportunity to do the right thing. We have already demonstrated our interest in amicable relations with China.

The life of another state is an unacceptable price for an Ambassador-ship in Peking. Future administrations must convey to China that the Nixon-Kissinger 1972 statement on Taiwan's status was unfounded and cannot be U.S. policy.

Twe should affirm to leaders in China and Taiwan that we will not tolerate change in Taiwan's status without full and free consultation of the people's wishes.

Twe should not unilaterally abrogate our defense treaty with Taiwan. However that is rationalized to our public, its real import will be immediately understood in Peking and Taipei and could precipitate reckless moves.

TWe should continue to sell arms to Taiwan. Given the disparities between China and Taiwan, these arms can only be used for defense of na-tional independence. That should be the moral bedrock of any foreign arms

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Mo. - I was, standing at the counter of the general store in town the other day, idly eavesdropping. The woman next to me asked the man who helps out in the store how his cold was coming along. She was relieved to learn that it was better and had a suggestion or two for its treatment.

It seems pretty special to live in a place where people don't study forms of politeness; they know and mostly like one another, so relations are just naturally warm and friendly.

The bank in Mountain View must be one of the few in the country that doesn't identify its checking-account. customers by number. It uses each customer's very own name instead. The girls in the front room recognize people's faces when they walk in the bank. The girls in the back room. recognize their signatures when checks come in and correctly debit them against their accounts.

Even the post office, that symbol of bureaucratic meptitude, gives personal and fast service in this town. It's fashionable these days to complain about the postal system and I don't like paying that thirteen cents any better than the next person, nor do I mailbox, so, even though he would be like waiting ten days for a package - late for his supper, he drove the seven that the rival service could handle in miles back out to our place in the two, but that's the fault of people a long way from Mountain View.

The Federal Government is not regarded in a kindly way here and although the Mountain View Post Office must have some sort of tenuous connection with the corporation that is the U.S. Postal Service, the local post office is strictly a local institution, which means that it is staffed by intelligent, cheerful, capable people who smile a lot and give efficient and speedy mail service. They never make mistakes. They remember what mail was sent out. They know where everyone lives and how to get there. They know all the postal rules. They know what the weather is going to be tomorrow. They know who moved away ten years ago and where he went. They know where the cow is that strayed from the farmer down the road. They have zip codes committed to memory. In emergencies they can produce a safety pin.

Recently I was shipped a quart of live lady bugs in the mail, ordered to do battle with the aphids in the garden. Our rural mailman carefully put the box in a shady place in the back of his car when he went out on his route. When he finished up at 5 P.M. back in town, he noticed that he had forgotten to put the ladybugs in our country and down the bumpy, twomile lane that leads from our mailbox to our house to hand deliver them with a smile and an apology for forgetting to leave them earlier.

One day last spring the man who drives the U.S. Mail truck between towns forgot to unload a cardboard box of live, day-old chicks to be delivered to a farmer who lives outside of town. The driver noticed them later in the day and left them off on his return trip to pick up the outgoing mail: The postmaster worried about the chicks staying in the box another day, so after he locked up the office that evening he took them to the farmer in his own truck, driving ten miles over some of the worst roads around here, across two fords and a washed-out bridge. The post office is a social center in the morning. People stop there to pick up their mail rather than wait for it to be delivered. They stand and chat with one another and the folks who work behind the desk pretty much know who has and who hasn't been in the office that day. A few weeks back, we were trying to get in touch with a man who has some land outside of town to talk to him about hee pasture. We stopped in at the post office one morning to see if he'd been in yet. Yes, he'd been in and gone, we were told. He had said he was going over to the cafe for a cup of coffee, however, and we could probably find him there, but if we didn't, did we want to leave a message for him?

Friendly, helpful people like that deserve an award. Perhaps a bronzed, stuffed Postmaster General for the flower bed in front of the office would

But this is not just a down-home cozy, mail operation. Last winter the post office in Providence, R. I., the nation's first automated system, lost a manuscript of mine down the memory hole of some machine. I complained. carried on and made a nuisance of myself until our postmaster looked into the matter. He forced that machine halfway across the continent to search around inside itself and find my manuscript and deliver it. The Post Office honchos ought to drop their management consultant teams and come out here to Mountain View to learn how to handle the mail.

Incidentally, that man that we wanted to talk to about bee pastire wasn't at the cafe, either. But the woman who runs it knew that he had gone over to the service station to get his truck filled with gas and was then going out to the Smith place to work cattle. We found him at the Smith place.

Things work out, easy like, in a small town.

Sleek Seek Stix Fix

By Russell Baker

In its old age, America yearns for the sticks. First it was the children, 10 years ago, chucking it all, chucking the tailored threads and the rat race and Dad's suburban martini pitcher, chucking the bright lights and the swarming excitement of conurbations, chucking it all to find salvation in the woods.

Goat's milk and trimming the kerosene wick and hoeing the radish patch. Reading by firelight, like Abe Lincoln. The Whole Earth Catalogue," Herman Hesse, Thoreau - all those Pilgrim's Progresses of the old back-to-the-sticks faith preached by the prophet Rousseau and pioneered by the affluent society of the 18th century. Lord Byron, Marie Antoinette.

Parents and grandparents of this new generation of instant rubes were slow to catch on, which was natural. Many of them had lived the rustic life when there was no alternative. Slopping the hogs is not apt to seem a spiritual experience to people who have never known the degradation of an expense-account lunch at the Plaza. Marie Antoinette found joy in tending sheep, but full-time shepherds who had never danced at Versailles acquiesced in her guillotining.

Romance, the better life, salvationfor this citified generation of baffled elders, these hopes were borne by the tinkle of a Cole Porter tune, and under the power of the prophet Ford they went to town. Now, they, too, yearn for the sticks.

Consider the present election, Two candidates for President and two for Vice President, and all of them country boys. Jimmy Carter of Plains, Ga. Walter Mondale of Afton, Minn. Robert Dole of Russell, Kan. Gerald Ford of Grand Rapids, Mich., which, while not exactly Possum's Crossroads, is not quite Detroit either.

If it were, Mr. Ford's zeal for saving the family farm might be matched by an enthusiasm for putting the unemployed city multitudes back to work, in which case, of course, Ronald Reagan would have flattened him in obedience to the will of the Republican National Convention.

Politically, the electorate, which watched in dismay when the children headed for the sticks in the 1960's, now marches in the footsteps of the prophet Rousseau and the future is in the hands of the country boys.

If citified Americans are worried about this, they give no sign. They abandoned the Republican Party to the rubes with hardly a grunt. As for the Democrats, in Carter they have chosen the most countrified candidate of all, and in the choosing, black voters, who are the most distressed of city dwellers, went strongly for the man from the sticks.

The notion that rustic life is good for the soul is not much older than Wordsworth. Certainly before Rousseau no one ever seriously argued that prolonged immersion in nature would contribute much besides brian scratches to the human condition.

In modernity, however, there are recurring periods in which large numbers of people attribute special salvationary spiritual power to rural living, as the children did who went to the woods in the 1960's.

This religious impulse is obviously at work in the present search for American political revival. Mr. Carter's faith in the old-time religion of Christian rebirth is well advertised as an important cause of his success, but President Ford is also a believer in the old-time religion.

In his case it is the old rustic economics to which generations of farmers were bred. This holds that the farmer is a unique contributor to American well-being and, therefore, deserves public subsidy to save him from hardship, but that to open the public purse to any other class of claimant is an odious act of socialism.

There aren't many practicing farmers left now, but the old-time religion of farmer economics appears stronger than ever. We saw its strength when good folk from the far-flung subsidized boroughs of the continent and especially the Sun Belt, spoke forth in anger last year when New York City asked for a handout.

The Sun Belt may prosper on subsidies, but the old-time religion holds. that only sin and damnation can result if Government extends the dole to the Slum Belt. The Sun Belt is essentially rustic, too, while the Slum Belt is urban, and Americans are flocking to sun and outdoors like kids to the woods, in search of salvation,

Not one of our four candidates is an authentic country boy, of course. They are all country slickers. You have to be, nowadays, to get the citified yearners for the old mud-betweenthe-toes virtues to vote for you. The real thing might chill the yearning masses. The country-music people learned this when they gussied up the real, down-home stuff with tricks learned at Juilliard and went socko on the charts from Sutton Place to Lake Forest What Americans probably want is the mud-between-the-toes virtues without getting any mud between the toes.

In a sprawling, airy office on the eighth floor of 545 Fifth Avenue, at 45th Street, stack upon stack of computerized voter lists wait near the banks of telephones. Cardboard cartons full of the candidate's paperback book are piled outside the press secretary's cubicle. The detailed accountant's sheets on the campaign manager's desk show an income of more than $1 million.

That is the Buckley-for-Senator headquarters. In a basement in a white house in Irvington, N.Y., with a phlegmatic St. Bernard attached by a clothes line to the door, two young men who graduated from college last June sit amid the clutter in a converted game room. It is not the modern mugger that has caused local officials to issue such warnings lately. Rather, the "city of the future," as Houston calis itself, is grappling with one of the more prominent residents of its past: the mosculex mosquito, bearer of St. Louis encephalitis, or "sleeping sickness." Five of the 17 human cases reported nationwide this summer have been confirmed here and in surrounding Harris County. Today, more than 2,300

Houston firemen and volunteers started an around-theweekend spraying effort to kill culex larvae. Robert Bartnett, director of the Harris County Mosquito Control District, urged resiyards for possible breeding places such as the insides of old tires, flower pots, and beer cans, where stagnant water collects.

"Ive even seen mosquitoes breed in the holes of a bowling ball," Mr. Bartnett said.

Built on a Swamn

It is a special problem for the nation's fifth-largest city. And it has reminded the dents that beneath all the skyscrapers, suburbs new and freeways there lies a swamp.

In fact, before postwar air conditioning made life in-doors bearable, few people wanted to move here. Swatting mosquitoes in a climate that resembles a steam bath half the year was few people's ideal of a luxuriant future. Neither was catching malaria, or dengue and yel-low fevers, which Houston mosquitoes used to carry in great numbers.

British diplomats were so averse to accepting a posting at the consulate here that the Foreign Office had to declare Houston a hardship post like Calcutta. One year of service here was worth 18 months in the more temperate zones. Since air conditioning, Houston's population has in-creased from less than 400,000 in 1945 to more than 1.4 million today. That is part of the problem. They have spread themselves over 520 developers continue to imsions in yesterday's bogs to accommodate newcomers.

The Harris County Mosquito Control District normally spends about $1 million a year keeping mosquitoes from discouraging growth of the city. Malaria, dengue and yellow fevers were eradicated decades ago, but the culex mosquito persists because, like the roach and the rat, it gets along well in a human environment.

A Sewage Problem

According to Robert Bar-row, who helps direct Harris County's mosquito wars, the culex mosquito loves to breed in sewage, which Hous-ton possesses in odiferous abundance. In fact, Houston's sewage treatment plants are so overburdened and improvements so far behind that Texas Attorney General John A. Hill has sued the

Mr. Hill has said that if Houston does not clean itself up in a burry the state will press to halt the issuing of new building permits. Mayor Fred Hofheinz has said that will paralyze the local con-struction industry and kill the prosperity that growth is creating. He said Houston was already working overtime to improve sewage disposal. And he reminded the Attorney General that Houston's popularity is partly due to low taxes, and that politicians who advocate spending enormous amounts of money on anything have a tendency to become ex-politicians.

Meanwhile, the Harris County Commissioners, in an apparant lapse of historical perspective, cut this year's mosquito control budget. Robert Bartnett, director of mosquito control, said that spraying had been cut by two-thirds.

After sampling mosquitoes last week, Mr. Bartnett declared that an average of 2.3 mosquitoes per thousand had been found infected with the St. Louis encephalitis virus, whereas one per thousand was considered high. Dr. Francine Jensen, the county health director, declared the mosquito threat a "public health emergency," allowing the county to get aid for aerial spraying from the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

The county also switched insecticides last week because officials found that many local mosquitoes had become immune to the old

Last year, there were 23 confirmed cases of St. Louis encephalitis in Houston that included one death. Five additional deaths and 46 more cases were suspected but not confirmed.

Houston's last big outbreak of St. Louis encephalitis was in 1964, when 224 cases were confirmed and 27 people died. After that, the Mosquito Control District was formed.

Carey Seeks U.S. Aid For Hurricane Damage

Governor Carey said yesterday that he was asking President Ford to authorize majordisaster assistance for New York City and Nassau and Suffolk Counties because of damage caused by the hur-ricane earlier this month.

The request was prompted by reports from Mayor Beame that the storm had caused $6.2 million in damage to city property, nearly half of it to beaches in the Rockaways. Nassau County reported $6.5 million in damage to private property and $5 million to public property. Suffolk County reported $9.75 million in damage to private property and $5.42 million to public property. It also listed $11.54 million in agricultural losses. In his message to the President, Mr. Carey voiced appreciation for the warnings from the National Weather Service that enabled New Yorkers to prepare for the storm and for the prompt response to the emergency by Federal officials in the area.

Scientists at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology have constructed a gene, the basic unit of heredity, complete with its regulatory mechanisms. It was implanted in a living bacterial cell, where it functioned as if it was a natural part of the cell's heredity. tal gains taxes are levied. The capital gains provision, which especially affects those who buy and sell securities, would be toughened in one respect and made less burdensome in another. The basic principle that only half a capital gain may be subject to taxes would be unchanged. [1:1-2.]

The Senate, voting 78 to 5, passed a $35.3 billion authorization bill that would extend Federal aid to higher education and vocational education for six years. The bill now goes to a conference with the House, which in May passed a separate bill extending grant and loan programs for higher-education students for one year and vocational education assistance for six years. The chairman of a Senate subcommittee investigating the West Point cheating scan-dal and the superintendent of the United States Military Academy charged that Army defense lawyers were withholding hundreds of affidavits by cadets that accuse others of cheating. The union representing New York City's public school principals and other school supervisors has offered to give up cost-ofliving adjustments recently provided for in a new contract to save the jobs of 303 of its members facing economy layoffs next month. The Board of Education said that it would take the "constructive approach" under consideration, and urged the United Federation of Teachers to defer some of its wage increases and fringe benefits to avoid additional teacher layoffs. CORRECTION

An article published in The Times on Monday concerning House passage of a bill to regulate toxic substances reported incorrectly that a similar bill passed by the Senate did not contain a prohibition against polychlorinated biphenyls, or PCB's. The Senate bill does contain a PCB amendment, though the provision differs from the version passed by the House.

BY ROBERT HANLEY

Alfred A. Strelsin, industrialist, philanthropist and arts patron, died Wednesday evening of heart failure at his home at 936 Fifth Avemue. He was 78 years old. Mr. Strelsin, the enterprising son of poor Belgian immigrants, branched away from an early career in journalism and advertising and became a master at buying and revitalizing a range of moribund business

His expansive curiosity, his friends say, was reflected in the various products of the companies he controlled. One constructed the Sixth Avenue subway in Manhattan in the 1930's. Others turned out optical lenses for cameras and microscopes, scientific instruments, hospital and medical supplies, and electronic motors and generators.

Mr. Streisin also organized a foundation in his name that annually gave tens of thousands of dollars to charities, hospitals and scholar-ship funds for the delinquent and the underprivileged. In the early 1960's he was also an ardent supporter and active fund-raiser, with his wife, Dorothy Dennis, the former Broadway singer and dancer, of Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival.

Institute Established

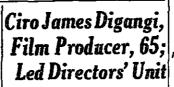

In addition, his largesse helped to establish in 1947 the Institute for Muscle Research at the Marine Biological Laboratory in Woods Hole, Mass., where Albert Szent-Gyorgyi, who won the Nobel Prize for Medicine in 1937 for discovering Vitamin C, has conducted muscle studies and cancer research since fleeing his native Hungary after the Communists took control there in 1945. In addition to financial acumen, Mr. Strelsin's life reflected a spirit of adventure and scholarship.

As a boy of 16, he made his way to the Klondike on a trapping expedition with Jim Tully, the hobo and circus roustabout who later became a successful novelist, and lived for a while on the earnings from pelt sales. In World War II, he did intelligence work for a dollar-ayear on the War Production Board, headed by his friend, Donald M. Nelson. He was involved in a project that thwarted Nazi gasoline raiders through the perfection of a type of dye that flowed through pipelines until it disclosed points of siphoning. Mr. Strelsin was also something of a perennial student. His early studies were at the University of Wisconsin's extension division. And over his adult life, well after his wealth had been established,

Fairfield Storm Cuts Utilities

A thunderstorm and lightning blacked out several thousand customers in Fairfield County early yesterday, the Connecticut Light and Power Company reported. A spokesman said the communities were Wilton, Norwalk, New Canaan and Westport Lightning struck a number of transformers and in Westport, a falling tree tore down electric wires. But the company spokesman said most customers had their power restored by midmorning.

Macy's Hit By 2 Small Blasts

Two small incendiary devices of the type that went off Thursday in two Herald Square stores exploded yesterday at Macy's. The devices, which went off in the ninth-floor furniture department and the second-floor ladies department, caused small fires, slight property damage, but no injuries, the police reported. No fragments of the devices were immediately discovered. A crank call reporting another such device in the store, one of the two hit Thursday, was received earlier in the day, but proved to be unfounded.

Special to The New York Times PERTH AMBOY, N.J., Aug. 27 —A barge with 2.8 million gal-lons of oil struck a rock and sank near the entrance to a Hess Oil Company terminal at the foot of State Street here at 5 o'clock this morning.

The Coast Guard said 600 gallons of No. 6 oil, used mainly for industrial purposes, had seeped into the Arthur Kill from a barge compartment containing 251,400 gallons of oil. By 4 P.M., the oil was carried five miles on an incoming tide from Outer Bridge Crossing to Cedar Point on Staten Island. After Arthur Kill was closed to marine traffic, an oil-poliution cleanup team from Toms River, N.J., began containment operations. Although a footwide orange collar was placed around the barge, hundreds of gallons of oil had run into the kill. Jast two fiscal years, the chain lost $1 million annually and a cash squeeze that began several months ago compelled it to resort earlier this month to the Bankrutcy Act for relief.

In Mr. Swaebe's view, what brought Abercrombie to its present troubled level was that "it lacked professional retail management which led to a lack of understanding of modern merchandising."

"But, what I found here," he said, "was a company in the sporting goods field with a name that had an unbelievable aura to it nationally and internationally. And that reputation, and a study of the business I have made, convinced me that this business can be saved."

In addition to replenishing basic stocks, priorities call for preparing the stores for Christmas and meeting with principal suppliers to assure deliveries of fresh, new goods, he said.

Contrafund Find-Out-cf-Favor Issues

By VARTANIG G. VARTAN

While Wall Street money managers are busy these days hammering out a variety of investment approaches, up in Boston Leo H. Dworsky is sticking to his basic philos-

It's a philosophy that seems to have worked well the 43-year-old Mr. far Dworsky, portfolio manager of Contrafund, a no-load mutual fund that is part of the Fidelity Group of funds.

So far this year, according to Lipper Analytical Services in a performance measurement of mutual funds, the net asset value of Contra-fund shares has increased 27 percent after climbing 40 percent in 1975. Since the inception of Contrafund in 1967, while the Dow Jones industrials managed to eke out a 13 percent gain, the fund's net asset value has almost doubled.

Mr. Dworsky says that he does not believe in pat market formulas or systems, and he does not issue target forecasts for the Dow indus-

The basic philosophy be-ind his growth-oriented fund, he points out, is "to buy stocks that are out of favor or undervalued" as he perceives them.

Thus, in the second quarter of 1976, the fund added two fertilizer stocks - a group clearly out of favor in the market—to its portfolio. These are International Minerals and Chemical and Williams Companies. Four other newcomers were Lone Star Industries. Prentice-Hall, H. J. Heinz and Nabisco. At midyear, the fund

showed holdings in 31 stocks and total assets of $46 million. Its largest position now is in Freeport Minerals. Contrafund tends to show a rather high portfolio turn-over—over 100 percent a year on average—because of its market approach and willingness to take capital gains.

We eliminated eight stocks in the June quarter," Mr. Dworsky said, "and lost some money in three of them— DeKalb Agresearch, A. H. Robins and Safeway Stores."

On the other hand, the showed a profit in Champion International, Cities Service and Phillips Petroleum. The biggest winner was Koppers, which was sold with a gain of nearly 50 perion" approach, which holds that the majority opinion in Wall Street tends to be "I don't take the view that the crowd is necessarily wrong," he said, "In fact, nobody knows exactly what the contrary opinion theory really means, since it's more of a generalized idea than a The best illustration of Mr. Dworsky's approach is to examine his thinking behind the purchase of big win-ners and big losers in the past for the portfolio. The fund has virtually tripled its money, for example, in Boeing, which was bought in December 1973, at a time of extreme unpopu-larity, reflecting the impact of the Arab oil embargo, the skyrocketing cost of jet fuel and the mothballing of some Boeing 747 fleets.

Rohr Industries is an example of a stock that went wrong for Contrafund. Mr. Dworsky had believed that the company would be able to capitalize on opportunities in mass transportation after the energy crisis. "We sold the stock and lost about half of our investment in Rohr,' he reported.

He rarely visits a company -contrary to general Wall Street strategy—before pur-chasing its stock Instead, he relies upon publicly available information and his constant monitoring of the market.

Mr. Dworsky practiced law before taking the helm of the then newly formed fund nine years ago. "Being a lawyer helps in the sense that it gives you analytical training," he says. "But it can also hinder you, because there is an opposite discipline at work," he adds. "A lawyer is trained to assemble as many of the avail-able facts as possible before making a decision, whereas a portiolio manager can gain a competitive edge if he is able to make a sound decision before all of the pieces of the jigsaw puzzle are in

As a general rule, big-name glamour stocks do not appear among the Contrafund holdbut exceptions exist. The fund, for example, pur-chased Avon Products in January of this year at an average cost of 33. The reasoning? "It was out-offavor and undervalued," responded Mr. Dworsky.

The conferees passed over the issue, but there is clearly a significant possibility for increasing the overall net revenue gain in the bill.

Education Credit Dropped In another move today the conferees apparently dropped from the bill a very costly provision added by the Senate that would grant a tax credit to offset part of the college eduexpenses incurred by parents for their children, or paid by any individual for him or herself. The Senate gave up the provision in return for a pledge by Representative Al Uliman, Democrat of Oregon, to take up this highly popular change in a separate bill.

Retirement Accounts

The provision, strongly supported by the Ford Administration, would allow more people to take advantage of the tax deduction from "individual retirement accounts." These now permit a deduction of up to $1.500 for deposits in special retirement savings plans, but only for persons who have no company pension plan. Under the change, individuals could put into such accounts an amount equal to the difference between the employer's pension plan contribution and $1.500. Thus it would affect employees in companies with relatively have lost revenue.

A New I.M.F. Council Is Urged

taries of the Treasury yester-day urged that a council of governors be formed in the international Monetary Fund as soon as possible.

Jack F. Bennett, now a senior vice president of the Exxon Corporation, and Robert V. Roosa, now a partner in Brown Brothers Harriman & Company, asserted that only such a council could properly exercise the necessary surveillance of the international monetary system. They sug-gest that the council be composed of officials at the finance minister level.

In testimony before the Senate International Finance subcommittee, Mr. Bennett said such a body would be useful for dealing with the question of whether "the Japanese Government has been attempting improperly to hold down the value of the yen."

Mr. Roosa testified that the council, which could be created under proposed amendments to the LM.F.'s articles of agreement, "could bring to bear the inherent power of many governments to rein-force the L.M.F. itself in focusing attention on the reper-cussions which the actions of particular governments may have upon the function-ing of the international monetary system."

Japan's Vice Minister of Finance for international af-fairs yesterday rejected forcharges that Japan has artificially depressed the value of the yen to increase

For Those Who Would Weep Some people suffer from 'dry eye,' the lack of the natural volume of tears. A mechanical engineer for the National Institutes of Health has invented what is called a blink-operated extracorporeal tear duct, for such persons to use.

The duct consists of a reservoir section containing the necessary liquid and a pump section consisting ei-ther of a contact lens or a silicone rubber tube for delivering the solution directly to the eye. The pump operation is activated by the eyelid's compressing the lens or the tube, and additional liquid is drawn from the reservoir. Elijah C. Walker was granted Patent 3,976,072 this

Knitting Machines From Italy Facing Dumping Scrutiny TO AVOID NO

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP) - The Treasury Department said today it had found that certain knitting machines imported from Italy were possibly being sold in the United States at less than fair value in violation of this nation's antidumping laws.

This decision, involving machines for knitting women's seamless hosiery, was one of several actions announced by the department in connection with laws that prohibit unfair trading practices such as dumping-the sale of goods in the United States at lower prices than in the county o ftheir ori-

The case of the knitting ma-chines will now go to the International Trade Commission, which will rule on whether American industry is being harmed by the imports. If so, special dumping duties may be assessed. Imports of the knitting machines from Italy last year were valued at nearly $3.3

million. In another action, the Treasury Department issued a formal determination that imports of acrylic sheet from Japan were being sold in the United States in violation of the antidumping laws. This action means special duties will be assessed on such imports unless the exporters raise their prices. Imports of the sheet in 1975 were valued at $3.7 million.

The Treasury Department also announced it had begun a dumping investigation concerning imports of pressure-sensitive plastic tape from West Germany. Such imports last year were valued at $4.6 million.

The department also said it was extending for three months a dumping investigation into imports of clear sheet glass from Rumania. The value of these imports during the first six months of this year was about $1.4 million.

GOLD PRICES DROP;

Metal Has Fallen $10 Since I.M.F. Auction 5 Weeks Ago

BRUSSELS, Aug. 27 (UPI)— The price of gold dipped again, today, wiping out the previous day's small gains. The dollar advanced against all European currencies except the French currencies except the French

Gold, which reached almost three-year lows at midweek in highly nervous markets because of an approaching Inter-national Monetary Fund bullion auction, fell in Zurich from $105.15 an ounce to $104.35, and in London from $104.875 to $104.375. The metal's price has fallen more than $4 during the week, and $10 since the I.M.F. last auctioned 780,000 ounces and swamped markets five weeks

In currency markets, the dollar showed an overall advance against the strong West Ger-man mark and Swiss franc and recouped some of the week's ioint float. In Paris, the franc continued its climb, still benefiting from new French Premier. But in Amsterdam, the news of Prince Bernhard's resignation from all his public posts unsettled the guilder, which posted an I1-month high against the dollar yesterday. In Frankfurt, the dollar was up from 2.5215 marks to 2.5250; in Zurich from 2.4748 francs to 2.4780; in Brussels

Amsterdam from 2.6280 guilders to 2.6368 and in Milan from 838.75 lire to 839.25. It was down in Paris from 4.9535 francs to 4.9485, its lowest in 17 days.

In London, dealers said light early selling pressure prompted a small intervention by the Bank of England to help the day until a little Transatlantic selling put its price down .15 of a cent to a $1.7705 close.

Nuclear Commission Weighs Court Move

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)-The Nuclear Regulatory Commission says it may ask the Supreme Court to review lower court decisions that led to a slowing in licensing new nuclear power plants. Its chairman, Marcus A. Rowden, told a Congressional committee today that decisions by the United States Court of Appeals raised uncertainties about the commissioner's rule-making responsibilities.

"We are actively pursuing with the Department of Justice the possibility of seeking Supreme Court review of these decisions," Mr. Rowden testified. The N.R.C. this month sharply curtailed licensing and operation of new nu-clear plants in response to a pair of Appeals Court decisions July 21.

Those decisions said the N.R.C. did not give enough attention to the environmental dangers posed by handling atomic wastes and fuel recycling in granting licenses to plants in Vermont and Michigan. The court said rules of the subjects must be more fully documented or explained.

Tar Sands Talks to Be Studied

OTTAWA, Aug. 27 (UPI)—Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie amounced today that talks would begin soon on the possibility of a Canada-Venezuela exchange program on tar sands exploration.

Both countries have huge reserves of oil-bearing tar sands that cannot be profitably exploited without development of new technology.

Mr. Gillespie said representatives from Canada's national energy corporation, Petro-Canada, would be visiting Venezuala soon to pursue negotiations that stem from last June's visit to Canada by Valentin Hernandez-Acosta, Venezuelan Minister of Mines and Hydrocarbons.

Petro-Canda's chairman, Maurice F. Strong, and its president, William H. Hopper, will be guests of the Venezuelan state petroleum corporation, Pétroleos de Venezuela, and will visit the Orinoco tar sands region. Mr. Gillespie said they hoped talks would lead to formal agreement on specific areas of cooperation.

OPEC Price Meeting Ends

VIENNA, Austria, Aug. 27 (AP)-The Economic Commission of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries ended today a five-day session believed to have centered on measures to prevent price-shaving.

The conference at OPEC headquarters here was held in secrecy. OPEC announced only the start of the sessions Monday and the end.

OPEC oil ministers are scheduled to meet Dec. 15 in Qatar. A special conference could be called earlier, however, and there has been speculation one might take place in late September or in Uctober.

The last time OPEC raised the price of oil was in October 1975. It raised the cost by 10 percent to $11.51 a barrel of market crude. Some of the 13 OPEC members are known to be pressing for a price rise to take effect in January.

Lackawanna Spurs Upstate Operation

LACKAWANNA, N.Y., Aug. 27 (UIP) — The Bethlehem Steel Corporation plant in Lackswanna will begin stepping up operations this weekend and will put all six iron-making blast furnaces in operation in operation.

The plant's general manager, Frederick A. Daggett Ir.. said that the increased blast furnace output would mark the first time since January 1974 that all six blast furnaces were in operof $125 Mr. Daggett said employment at the plant was "over 12,000," an increase of more than 1,500 in the last four months. The auto industry boom and its incerased steel orders were said to be responsible for the plant's stepped-up operations.

Buying through a real estate broker?

He'll give you a big selection to choose from, in the price range you want...advise you on current financing, taxes, closing procedures... and handle the dozen and one details connected with the transfer of property.

To find a broker in your vicinity, check the listings in these classified pages every day, Brokers run far more advertising in The New York Times than in any other paper in the New York area.

Negotiators Seeking to Gain Accord Among Inmates, Still Sharply Divided

By NATHANIEL SHEPPARD It. Special to The New York Times

ATTICA, Aug. 27—The atmosphere at the Attica State Correctional Facility is becoming increasingly tense, accord-ing to officials and visitors, as negotiators work diligently to end the sharp division in opin-ion among inmates on the acceptability of a proposed agreement that would end their five-day old strike.

Although the agreement was reached on Wednesday after two days of lengthy and grueling talks between correction officials and 12 immate leaders, it has not been endorsed by the prisoners at the maximumsecurity facility. According to reports from visitors and officials, the inmates appear to be almost evenly divided on the reform proposals.

Since Wednesday, inmate leaders have shuttled among cellblocks to explain to inmates just what the proposals provide. However, they have been unable to get a consensus on the package.

The immate leaders met for about an hour and a half today with Harold J. Smith, the superintendent of Attica, in an effort to iron out the remaining wrinkles they had identified in a statement to newsmen, who were barred from the prison for the third day. Mr. Smith said that it was his feeling that the major obstacle to acceptance of the agreement was a strong desire by inmates to get a commitment that their legislative proposals would be transmitted to the Governor and the Legislature and given serious consideration.

Many visitors to the prisor which is 30 miles southeast of Buffalo, said the already tense atmosphere that had developed as a result of the misunder standings among the 1,980 inmates was being further aggravated by hostility of guards who have already voiced their strong opposition to the pro posed agreement.

According to the visitors, in-mates in virtually every cellblock said that they felt they were being harassed by guards in retaliation for concessions in the agreement. As examples they cited lengthy delays in mail delivery, a shortening of visits with friends and relatives through slow processing of passes, lengthy waits for meals and extraordinarily long waits

—sometimes days—for showers.
Superintendent Smith acknowledged that the facility was operating on reduced schedules for security reasons. He said, for example, that men were being taken to meals in reduced numbers "to keep things from getting out of con-trol."

Though describing the at-mosphere in the facility as "tense," he said that there had been no serious incidents.

Despite public pronounce-ments to the contrary by cor-rection officials in Albany, the strike appeared to be in full swing, with fewer than 400 inmates, according to estimates by prison officials, participat-ing in the reduced work programs. About 650 inmates went to meals today, according to the same officials.

Attica officials acknowledged that they had closed the facil-ity's commissary, but denied that it was an attempt to force the inmates to participate in meals. Most of the visitors to the prison today and yesterday brought large packages and boxes of food, which they said were meant to tide the men over for a few days.

They complained that the inmates were being fed two bologna and cheese sandwiches at each mealtime. The visitors also said that the majority of men in one cellblock—C Block —had expressed willingness to end the strike, but apparently had been harassed by other inmates who did not favor an end

As a result, according to some visitors to that block, guards kept all of the men confined to their area.

Boston Panel to Provide Forum for Racial Problems

BOSTON, Aug. 27 (UPI)— Mayor Kevin H. White has ap-pointed an 11-member "Committee for Boston" to provide a forum for discussing the city's racial problems and to help assess preparations for the opening of schools under the third year of court-ordered desegregation.

Edward J. McCormack Jr. former Massachusetts Attorney General and one-time rival of Senator Edward M. The Buckley money, according to Mr. Saffir, has "Everything we do between now and primary day we would be doing without Peyser," said the Buckley manager, Leonard Saffir, a baldish, fast-talking former come from every state in the Union; even the Virgin Islands lists a Buckley contrib-utor. Much of the money seems to have come from philosophical conservatives attracted ideologically to the International News Service reporter. His noncampaign role is as the Senator's administrative assistant. Not enough to do all they would like, Mr. Saffir said. But, with more than half

Mr. Buckley will have the conservative Party's line without opposition and, in contrast to six years ago when as a third-party candidate, he slipped between two liberals — one a Democart. one a Republican — he is the officially designated choice of the Republican State Committee.

The Buckley campaign focuses on November and, to Mr. Saffir's professed chagrin, is being run like a business, because of the new campaign-finance laws.

Controller Hired

"Look," he said as he waggled a number-filled sheet of lined accountant's paper. "It's the first campaign I've ever been in where we hired a controller before a news

The controller, William Price, worked six years for Radio Liberty. The publicity man, Robert Mackin, started in that line of work for At-torney General Louis J. Lef-kowitz in 1957. He was with the Urban Development Corporation before signing on as a paid employee with the Buckley campaign.

For those with memories of New York politics in the late 1960's, the mind buggles at the idea of a Buckley cam-paign with a staff, let alone a paid staff. It was a lonely journey-not unlike Mr. Pey-ser's this time-that Mr. Buckley undertook when he first ran for Senate in 1968. Rarely did he have more than one trailing newsman. He would be driven to minuscule meetings by the lo-cal Conservative chairman. Once, a companion recalls, he filled in an empty campaign afternoon by visiting a his-torical monument and poking about at a church book sale.

But now his campaign has the trappings conferred by incumbency and by major-party sponsorship. Liz Doyle has moved over from the Senator's office in New York City to assist Mr. Saffir. Dawne Cina and Leah Walsh have come up from the Washington office to supervise scheduling.

"There won't be a trip that hasn't been advanced," Mr. Saffir boasted. "We've got a staff of 19 advance men . and women," amends Miss Cina.

The upstate map on Lining Burnett's wall is divided into five segments. The western wedge is labeled "Tom." That is for Tom Bissel. His job, and the job of four others, is to keep in touch with county organizations for Mr. Burnett, In New York City, that task is entrusted to Barbara Keating, who emulated Mr. Buckley's 1968 effort by offering herself as the ballot sacrifice to Senator Jacob K. Javits two years ago. Now she is the staff member responsible for the five bor-oughs and Westchester County.

With the expectation that Jimmy Carter will carry New York State and that the fiveway Democratic primary will produce a "formidable" opproduce a "formidable" op-ponent, the Buckley staff will look upon itself as the under-dog in the general election, Mr Saffir said Mr. Saffir said.

"The candidate who's going to win," he added, "is the one who's better organized."

Should that indeed be the test, the Buckley-for-Senator staff has some cause for opti-mism. The candidate's time between now and Nov. 2, election day, is already roughly budgeted. An advertising agency, Kennen & McLaughlin, has been on retainer since February. There are already story boards for commercials, in addition to that costs $20,000 or so.

"We've budgeted $2.5 million overall," Mr. Saffir said.
"I doubt if we'll spend that

It will be partly cloudy and warm today with afternoon thundershowers likely in the New York Metropolitan area. Thundershowers are likely from New England through the Ohio Valley, to the east-ern lake region. Thunder-showers are also forecast for the western portions of the Middle Atlantic States and from the lower Mississippi Valley through the Gulf States. Mild temperatures will prevail from the upper Mississippi Valley through the Plains States and the Rockies and into the northern plateau region. It will be very warm to hot along the northern Pacific Coast, while elsewhere in the country readings will be warm and with clear to partly cloudy skies.

Overcast skies and mild temperatures accompanied by occasional thunderstorms occurred yesterday from the Northeast to the eastern lake region and south through the Middle Atlantic States. A few thundershowers were also found from the Texas panhandle to central Kansas. Hot temperatures dominated the central and western lake region and the eastern portions of the Central Plains States, while it was cool throughout the remainder of the Plains States and the Rockies. Skies were mostly clear and temperatures pleasant in the western third of the nation, except for some cool readings in the Pacific Northwest and hot readings in the Desert

"The American attitude to children at this point is approaching hostility. Children are very low on our priority list, and the situation seems desperate to me. I'm honeful that with this new, young generation of parents, whose children are planned, perhaps it will get better."

Mr. Keeshan says his own childhood was "very secure, very happy," although "a psychietrist would probably see ome significance in the fact that I never really knew my grandfathers, and ended up spending my life—from my 20's —playing a very grandfatherly man."

"I have always known who was," he said. "The Captain and I are two very separate people."

Steve Rose, associate publisher of The Johnson County Sun, said that Senator Dole's 1974 press aide, Sam Richardson, was in his office on the day that Esther Surs arrived to place a $25.20 ad for the "Eastern Kansans for the Right to

"Esther came in with her ad and there was a question of whether to accept it or not."
Mr. Rose said. "He [Richardson] saw the ad. But it wasn't a question of content at that time. It was a question of cost. They [the Dole campaign] were within $1,000 of their spending

Mr. Rose said that the next day, when "higher echelons in the Dole committee" saw the content of the skull and crossbones ad, he received a tele-phone call ordering that the advertisement be canceled. Mr. Richardson, who earlier denied any authorization or prior knowledge of the anti-abor-tion ads, said today that he recalled signing for Mrs. Surs's ad at the Johnson County newspaper. G.C.P. Plans to Block Bid For Congressional Pay Rise

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)

A Republican effort to block automatic pay increases for members of the House of Representatives next year was disclosed last night on the House

Representative John Rhodes of Arizona, the House minority leader, said he had heard rumors that Democratic leaders were being asked to prevent the attempt, which has been planned for next week. Representative John J. McFail of California, the House majority whip, replied that he believed a House vote on blocking the raise would be permitted. Representative Charles E. Grassley, Republican of Iowa, said he understood that the automatic pay increase would be about $2,000 for the fiscal year starting Oct. I. He said that he would propose an emendment to block it. House members now get $44,600 a year.
